Talks Open To Ease Berlin Crisis

Times News Services

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Dean Rusk met with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin today to push a new U.S. plan for stronger guarantees of Allied access to West Berlin.

Their conference possibly was the first of a new round of U.S.-Soviet discussions on the city. One of the issues to be decided today was whether more talks would follow.

The access plan was described as a key requirement before Rusk unveils to the Russians broader proposals for lowering tension in the Berlin area.

These involve increased participation of communist East Germans in day-to-day operations in the area. But the State Department denounced as "wholly inaccurate" one report that the United States had proposed a 3,500-man reduction in the western garrison in Berlin as part of a settlement plan.

Officials claimed Rusk now had general Allied agreement on a more comprehensive plan, which involves a NATO non-aggression pledge, and a Soviet-American exchange of pledges not to give nuclear weapons to other countries.

The secretary, however, did not plan to give Dobrynin any written proposals at this first session.

No Formal West German Protest

Although West Germany had not formally disapproved of the new set of U.S. proposals, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer was understood to fear they went too far in some respects.

Adenauer continues to oppose strenuously any offer of a concession to the Russians which in his view would move toward recognition of the Communist East German government.

"We would not object to East German representation on such an authority," a West German spokesman said. "But the big four powers with occupation rights in Berlin (the U.S., Soviet Union, Britain, France) must continue to be primarily responsible for the decisions. East German representation should be limited to a technical competence."

The spokesman said there also must be no concessions in a possible agreement on non-aggression between the NATO and Warsaw Pact countries, another point in the Washington plan.

The spokesman denied that West Germany's demands represent a major split with the United States. He dismissed as highly exaggerated week-end newspaper reports of a

U.K. 'PEACE CORPS' FOR NEW YORK SLUMS

LONDON (AP)—Sixteen young Britons are going to New York this summer to do "peace corps" work among the tenements of Manhattan's lower East Side.

With American volunteers, they aim to keep children out of trouble during school vacation in an area where teen-age gang war is frequent.

The Britons—known as the Clayton Volunteers—include five girls. They pay as much of their fares as they can. The rest comes from charity funds.

Boosts Assured B.C. Pensioners

The B.C. government is ensuring that all pensioners get $10 increases in line with new Ottawa grants.

It is boosting the maximum for old-age assistance so that all recipients can get the full advantage of the $10 plus existing supplementary allowance paid by B.C.

It is also boosting the actual payments for blind and disabled pensioners, with Ottawa sharing part of the cost of a $10 increase.

An agreement covering increases for the blind and disabled has already been signed and mailed to Ottawa for federal signatures.

RETROACTIVE

It will be retroactive to April 1.

Premier Bennett's budget allowed $2,000,000 to pay for the pensions boosts, but no confirmation or details of the deal had been made until government officials confirmed it today.

First move, already taken, was to boost the maximum pension allowed for pensioners over 70 eligible for old age assistance.

The old age pension was $55 from Ottawa plus a special supplementary allowance of up to $24 from B.C. The maximum paid was $79.

PAY FULL $24

However, Premier Bennett has ordered welfare officials to continue paying the full $24, making a total maximum pension of $89.

At the same time B.C. has offered an agreement with Ottawa to boost old-age assistance for people between 65 and 70, blind and disabled, by $10.

The increase will be shared 50-50 by Ottawa and B.C. for the blind, and 25-75 for the others.

In other words, B.C. will pay an extra $5 a month to its blind pensioners and an extra $2.50 to disabled and 65-70-year-old pensioners.

Ottawa will pick up the rest of the tab up to $10.

Boats Seized Off Alaska

KODIAK, Alaska (AP)—Two Japanese fishing boats have been seized and the captains of three Japanese fishing vessels charged in Alaska Superior Court with poaching in Alaska waters.

The three captains were to be arraigned today.

The move by Alaska state officials climaxes years of discussion over fishing by the Japanese in waters claimed by Alaska.

The seizure of Japanese fishing fleet vessels began Saturday night when Capt. E. L. Mayfield of the Alaska state police boarded the 65-foot herring catcher Ohtori Maru No. 5 at the mouth of Ugank Bay in Shelikof Strait.

The Ohtori Maru's skipper, Higashima Tadae was charged with fishing commercially without a licence and without having registered his gear or boat. The Ohtori Maru was escorted to Kodiak by the Alaska state fish and game department vessel Teal, and held in lieu of $25,000 bond.

BOARD SECOND BOAT

A second boat, the Soicha Maru No. 7, was boarded in Shelikof Strait Sunday night and escorted to Kodiak by Alaska fish and game department vessel Widgeon.

The Soicha Maru's skipper, Abe Tadashi, was charged with violating Alaska's inland waters.

The two seized boats were part of a fleet of five accompanied by a 5,000-ton mother ship, the Banshu Maru which has 123 people aboard. Alaska officials claim the Japanese have been taking herring in Shelikof Strait for about two weeks.

The Banshu Maru's captain, Mongo M. Hanasaki, also was charged with fishing commercially without having notified the state.

NO COMMENT

In Washington officials said today the question of Japanese fishing operations in waters claimed by Alaska is in the process of being resolved.

Until the U.S. determines whether the waters are U.S. territory, officials would not comment on the weekend incidents.

In Tokyo, a spokesman for the Talyo Fisheries Co., which owns the vessels, said, "we have ordered the fleet to operate at least five miles off the coast of the United States, two miles outside the accepted territorial water boundary. We are confident no violation is involved."

'Hot Potato' Today's Crime Special

LONDON (AP)—The potato is the hot item these days for British hijackers and Irish smugglers, due to a shortage in Britain.

Raiders got a good haul during the weekend. At Manchester a truck carrying 2½ tons of potatoes was stolen. Another two tons was hijacked at Liverpool. Somebody got away with 43 sacks of 112 pounds each from a lonely warehouse near Colchester, Essex.

At the Manchester warehouse, manager John Wilson brought in two Alsatian dogs to guard the remaining stocks. Guards were mounted on other warehouses and on produce markets in Britain's major cities.

Calling Perry Mason:

A Victorian was puzzled over the weekend when he found an intruder inside a sealed case of beer. He bought his usual brand but on opening the case discovered a solitary bottle from a different brewing house, complete with distinctive top and label.

Many Canadians must have been surprised at opening ceremonies of the NHL playoff game last night, when it was announced that our "national anthem" was to be sung and the soloist lit into a truncated version of "The Maple Leaf Forever."

Sounded good, too. An even worse Boner—considering that the game originated in Chicago—was perpetrated during the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner." The TV cameras zoomed in for a closeup of Old Glory, which enabled viewers to count the stars. How many were there? Forty-nine, that's how many.

Prices Victoria philatelists will pay for stamps surprised Wilfred and John Lund, who operate an auctioneering firm in the city.

They have come to the conclusion that the stamp market here is as good as anywhere else after selling a private collection for $6,000.

They were worried that little interest would be shown and considered sending the collection to London or New York, where there are big markets for stamps.

"Frankly, we were surprised at the number of collectors who turned up at the auction and the prices they offered for the stamps," the brothers Lund said.

"If you work in an office and have only a short lunch hour, you are welcome to bring your sandwiches and eat them in the Cathedral as you listen to Bishop Coleman."

So says a recent bulletin from Dean Brian Whitlow, announcing special Holy Week services at Christ Church, which started today. The dean adds:

"No one will mind. We can easily put up with a little rattling of paper if it makes it possible for people to be present who could not come otherwise."

Bishop Michael Coleman, who is conducting the noon-hour services, was formerly of Qu'Appelle. He resigned for health reasons last year and is now vicar of North and South Pender Islands.

Ann Hassen, 2238 Brighton, a biology student at Victoria College, and Betty Newton, museum artist, today are enjoying the results of many hours of tedious and painstaking drawing in a dingy basement room of the Provincial Museum.

They drew some 60 illustrations for a new Provincial Museum handbook, "The Heather Family of B.C.," published by the Queen's Printer.

The project called for accurate and detailed drawing. This was difficult because flowers of some plants were no bigger than a pin head.

The two women, for the greater part of their work, were obliged to use a microscope to record the details of the various plants. If they made one mistake, it meant starting all over again.

"The work got so boring that it finally became interesting," said Miss Newton. "You got to a stage when you began to appreciate the beauty of microscopic parts of flowers."

Miss Hassen's comment:

"I learned a lot."

The Conservative newspaper said:

"Representatives of the six Common Market countries in Brussels warned Britain that the safeguards she has requested for exports of manufactured goods, foodstuffs and raw materials from Canada and Australia are not acceptable in their present form."

"A similar warning has been given on requests for safeguards for British farmers. The implication is that Britain must either reduce the requests or risk delaying the negotiations on entry into the market."

Meanwhile, Neues Deutschland, East Germany's main Communist newspaper, says the latest reported U.S. ideas on international control of access to West Berlin constitute an "approach to reality."

The paper mentions the possibility of forming an international authority, in which East Germany would be represented, to control access routes between West Berlin and West Germany.

Neues Deutschland, quoting Western news agencies for this proposal, comments: "This approach to reality has caused an obvious outbreak of rage in Bonn."

Previously East Germany has demanded complete control over West Berlin's access routes and has rejected international control.

OVERCOME 'LOAFERS' HEART'

Preventive Exercise Avoids Heart Attack

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Are you tired, tucked out?

Would you like someone to foot your bill for several weeks in a beautiful vacation spot away from the turmoil and stresses of daily life?

In Russia, Germany, Austria and Switzerland many persons get just that kind of break every year, Dr. Wilhelm Raab, a Vermont physician, said today.

But they don't simply sit around and loaf. They're taught to exercise every day to overcome "loafer's heart" and help themselves avoid the future heart attack, he said.

Raab, of the University of Vermont College of Medicine, is an exponent of exercise as one means to safeguard the heart from the seemingly sudden heart attack.

REDUCE CHANCES

In Russia and other European countries, millions of persons have had the benefits of "preventive reconditioning" to reduce their chances of heart attacks, he told an opening session of a symposium on coronary heart disease.

Governments, industries and social health insurance organizations have paid for the programs, Raab said.

He explained that many persons have "loafer's heart" from too little physical activity. The heart doesn't develop the ability to stand up under stress either from sudden physical demands or sudden excitement.

Chemicals from the adrenal glands ordinarily stimulate the heart, regulating its beat, blood pressure and its response to stress. But this same chemical stimulation can sometimes overtax the heart.

The "loafer's heart" cannot shoot in enough blood to supply the oxygen needed when these chemicals are released in reaction to stress, or the heart isn't trained to counteract the overdoze chemical stimulation, Raab said.

Regular exercise can help the heart build the reserves and the means of handling this stress, he said. But the exercise preparation has to be done carefully for hearts which haven't been accustomed to it, he added.

Shifting Sands Detected By Each Side on Columbia

B.C. and Ottawa spokesmen now are saying each side is changing its position on Columbia River power—particularly the question of power sales to the U.S.

Justice Minister Fulton says new proposals made by British Columbia seem to represent a "significant modification" of the province's position on the export of power.

At the same time, Attorney General Bonner of B.C. says he believed the federal government may be changing its position on the export of power.

The two government spokesmen commented on Columbia and power developments generally in separate statements and speeches during the week end.

Mr. Fulton, in a speech at Vernon and in a statement released in Kamloops and Vancouver, said the B.C. government has made interesting proposals that now are being checked carefully to see whether they might form a good starting point for an acceptable solution to the Columbia River differences.

"As for Ottawa's position, he said, "we will grasp any compromise if it's reasonable and honorable."

Mr. Bonner, speaking in a Vancouver interview while attending a constituency meeting, said he is hopeful Ottawa will ratify the international treaty soon.

"We are ready to let contracts for the Columbia at about 30 days' notice," Mr. Bonner said, "our engineering is that far advanced."

He said he believes Ottawa's position on power will be brought into line with natural gas and oil policies which permit export of large quantities to the U.S.

Second Career ... A Sparkling Freshet

Here is the eighth of 12 articles from the book, "A Brighter Later Life," by Howard Whitman, noted writer on human affairs and social problems.

By HOWARD WHITMAN

Some people just won't quit. To these lovers of work, retirement from one career is simply the signal to start out on another.

Actually "second careers" are bringing satisfaction and happiness to thousands of older citizens.

Some have turned to second careers after becoming disillusioned with retirement; some have been nudged toward second careers by financial necessity; some have sought recognition and a feeling of worth-while-ness, and some have been on the trail of sheer personal satisfaction.

Following are the stories of three individuals who found three entirely different kinds of second careers. Perhaps in their experience there may be an idea or two of value in your own life plan.

Self-Employed

Alan Thomas spent all of his work life as a printer. But he was always working for somebody else. For the 30 years prior to his retirement at 65 he was employed by a large printing firm.

Printing is a business which, for some reason, people get especially attached to; it's said they get "printer's ink in their blood." If this was a malady, Mr. Thomas fell victim to it. He loved printing with a rare passion.

But he also aspired to one day have a small printing shop of his own. This was his retirement plan.

Over his work years he made a hobby of studying unusual printing techniques. He studied the history of printing, the origin of the various type faces, and the evolution of printing methods over the centuries.

Perfect Hobby

These studies were fascinating in themselves; they made the perfect hobby for Mr. Thomas during his work career. They also laid the foundation for his second career.

He called it his "R-Day" plan—"R" for Retirement. Once he got his age 65 fare-well from the company, he would set up a small printing shop in his own home and become a printer of limited editions of special books.

But this was not the sort of undertaking which could be launched cold, without preparation, on any Monday morning. Mr. Thomas spent a couple of decades implementing his plan.

When "R-Day" finally arrived he not only had his tools and equipment—he even had full cupboards of supplies and his first book-printing project waiting to be tackled.

Financial Success

Three months after formal retirement, Alan Thomas printed his first book. It was one of a projected series turned out in the highest style of printing craftsmanship. The combination of unusually fine paper, rare type faces, and artistic design made an immediate success of this initial edition. It sold out in short order.

Soon the home print shop was humming with business. Mr. Thomas' wife and married daughters helped out in their spare time, themselves developing skills in typesetting, paper selection, printing and bookbinding.

Here "second career" became not only a creative activity for Mr. Thomas' later years, but a financial success as well and, most important, a form of satisfying work which added meaning, spirit, enjoyment and achievement to the life of his entire family.

Educator to Lawyer

Dr. Franklin P. Graves, outstanding educator, worked all his life without ever giving a thought to retirement. He served for a time for the government in the field of education and was kept busy as president of a university until the age of 71.

Why should it have occurred to him during those years to plan for another career? His first career was brilliant enough.

But retirement is an inexorable thing; it pursued Dr. Graves even amid the brilliance of his professional career, and, during the Second World War, it finally caught up with him. He formally retired at 71.

A year of various minor activities followed, none of them satisfying the urge for achievement which remained as keen in this septuagenarian as it had been in his most energetic days of youth. To friends he confided that he had never spent such a useless, boring year.

Back to School

Dr. Graves harked back to his own early days in college, when he had struggled mightily to determine the direction he would follow in life. Two roads beckoned to him: the family profession of law, and the field of education. He had turned down law. Why not go back and pick it up now?

The thought occurred to him with dramatic suddenness and quickly sparked his enthusiasm. At age 72, Dr. Graves enrolled as a beginning student at a law school.

A wartime accelerated course was being offered, providing for those who successfully passed it a law degree in two years instead of three. Dr. Graves, the senior member of his class by almost half a century, plunged into concentrated study.

He was well aware of common beliefs (however erroneous) that the aged are no longer adept at learning, and he was keenly aware, too, of the multiple decades which had passed since he last engaged in classroom study.

Wrote a Book

But when the two years were up he had not only passed the course and earned his law degree at the age of 74; he also quite auspiciously passed the state bar examination.

Dr. Graves put out his shingle and so launched his second career as a lawyer. He developed a successful practice and eight years later, at the age of 82, plunged into the writing of a book on how to study law. At the time he claimed that this project would probably keep him busy until he was 100.

Harold Johnstone, a research physicist, made 24 important discoveries during his 30 years in the laboratory. In his retirement he made his 25th and most important discovery: how to live.

Mr. Johnstone worked for the Western Electric and the Bell Telephone Laboratories from 1920 to 1950. Then came retirement—and a second career.

For physicist Johnstone and his wife, Sophie, who participated in it with him, the second career was exotic in the literal definition of that word: "introduced from a foreign country."

They took to raising lychees—not the dried-up lychee nuts which we occasionally encounter in a Chinese restaurant, but the fresh, strawberry-red succulent fruit which has been a delicacy to the Chinese since the Shang Dynasty (circa 1766-1122 B.C.) and had never been successfully cultivated to any great extent in this country.

On Tamiari Trail

The Johnstones, exploring the west coast of Florida, came upon a remarkable plantation on the Tamiari Trail at Laurel, where Col. W. R. Grove and his father before him had established an arboretum of plants and trees from all over the world, including an experimental lychee orchard.

It was the lychees which fascinated the Johnstones; they bought the plantation. In 1955 they harvested a crop of 4,000 pounds—approximately one-fourth of all the lychees grown in this country. By 1960 they had increased their crop to close to 9,000 pounds.

It was not so much the money (the fruit sold for a dollar a pound, and at this scale of production one could hardly get rich) which spurred Mr. Johnstone in his second career, so much as it was the sheer fascination of the challenge, the enchantment of bringing a bit of the Orient to Laurel, Fla.

We captured a bit of the enchantment ourselves, touring the orchards with Mr. Johnstone in his jeep, feeling as into faraway Kwantung Province, surrounded as we were by the rows of Royal Chen Purple lychee trees in their handsome evergreen garb.

In the spring of 1960 something new had caught his fancy. He had transplanted

Relief for the Loggers

MR. FLEMING HAS OFFERED direct tax relief to this province's forest industries—and has left the way open for Mr. Bennett to do the same. The premier has already indicated his desire to ease the burden on loggers, but has attached strings to his proposed concessions.

The federal gesture comes at an opportune time. The industry on which British Columbia counts for almost half the dollars produced in the province has entered a new era of fierce competition. It must have foreign markets.

In the Pacific Northwest states, the Weyerhaeuser interests are seeking to check the inflow of British Columbia forest products. In all other timber-producing nations of the world, except the United States, production costs are lower than in British Columbia. And the drive for customers has never been pressed harder.

If British Columbia can cut its costs, the industry can be more competitive.

The new federal budget recognizes that fact. It continues a very generous tax allowance for research work in the industrial field. It provides special concessions to encourage higher sales. And it moves toward partial elimination of the double taxation which falls on British Columbia and Ontario logging operations.

In British Columbia the federal government makes its regular collection of corporation taxes. But the province also collects a special tax on logging operations. The province grants tax exemption on the first $25,000 income from logging and makes certain allowances for depreciation, etc.

After that, it applies a 10 per cent tax. That tax continues and is not influenced by the Fleming budget.

What Mr. Fleming has done concerns only the federal corporation tax which is returned in part to British Columbia under the present federal-provincial tax sharing agreement.

Ottawa, by its new deal for the industry, permits the logger to deduct from the total tax he pays the federal government, a sum equal to two-thirds of the amount he pays to British Columbia.

Mr. Bennett, in the Logging Tax Act Offset Act, passed at the last session of the legislature but not yet proclaimed, would provide relief, but would call for higher sacrifice on Ottawa's part.

The provincial legislation suggests that the federal corporation tax be reduced by the 10 per cent paid to the province, so that loggers would not be paying taxes twice on the same earnings. The loss in revenue, British Columbia proposes, should be shared on a ratio of 38 by Ottawa to 9 by Victoria—the rates used in computing returns to the province under the existing federal-provincial tax sharing agreement.

The federal government offers the loggers the benefits of tax exemption amounting to two-thirds of the provincial tax. The province wants Ottawa to give up a little more than three-quarters of the 10 per cent and says British Columbia will sacrifice the other quarter.

The next move is up to Mr. Bennett. Mr. Fleming has granted his concession without qualification.

The federal budget removes a large part of the discrimination arising from double taxation of logging operations in the province. That is help to the industry at a propitious time. One factor in high cost production has been modified. Incentive concessions for increased sales and for industrial research provide further encouragement.

But the forest industries of British Columbia still face formidable tasks in selling in markets now open to burgeoning low-cost producers. How they meet those tasks is a bread and butter matter to every man, woman and child in the province.

Foreign Ownership Growing

THE MOST RECENT DOMINION Bureau of Statistics figures show that foreign investors owned 51 per cent of Canada's manufacturing industry and controlled 57 per cent of it in 1959.

Five years earlier, foreign investors owned 47 per cent and controlled 51.

In those years United States ownership of manufacturing went up from 37 to 41 per cent and United States control from 42 to 44 per cent.

In the petroleum and natural gas fields, foreign ownership in the five years to and including 1959 increased to 63 per cent from 60, and foreign control to 75 from 69 per cent. United States investors owned 57 per cent and controlled 69.

U.S. capital also predominated in the ownership and control by foreign interests of mining, smelting, rubber, electrical and chemical industries.

When the pianist strikes the chord at the industrial meeting, it's becoming difficult to know whether the British version of the National Anthem should be sung, or "My country, 'tis of thee."

The College Atmosphere

WITH INCREASING FREQUENCY the newspapers are reporting seminars, discussions and conferences on a wide range of subjects at Victoria College.

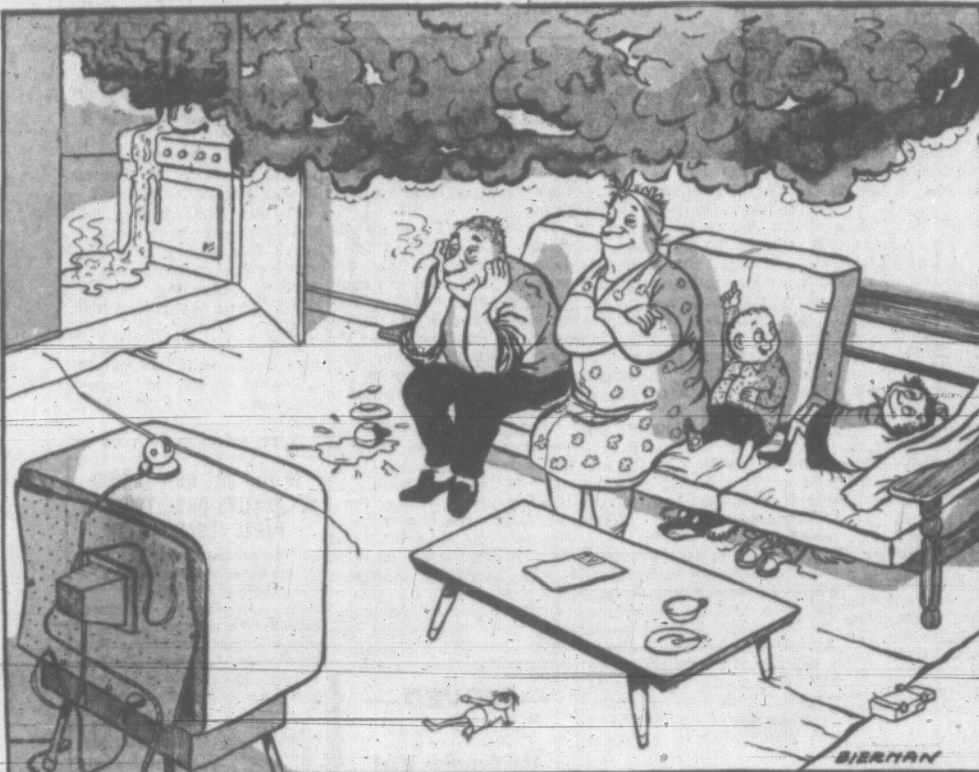

To these meetings come people not directly associated with the College but concerned with subjects of cultural and social interest to the community. The other day, as an example, library experts gathered on the campus to discuss future developments in their profession on Vancouver Island.

The gravitation of such groups to Victoria College is a natural trend. Where could they assemble more appropriately than at the intellectual headquarters of the capital?

Public appreciation is being shown for this focal point of learning and improvement of the mind. The meetings of outside groups provide evidence of the importance of the college and the university atmosphere have not only in the realm of formal scholarship, but in general improvement for the community.

Victoria College continues to grow up, and the people of Greater Victoria and Vancouver Island with it.

MEMORIES AND TRIBUTES

A Grateful Look at Yesteryear

I UNDERSTAND that school pupils of today think nothing of telling a teacher that they like her dress. They would even tell her that they DON'T like her dress. Such a thing could never have happened in our day. No matter how much you liked a teacher you never took liberties like that. And certainly you would never, never dare to tell a teacher that you thought he or she was pretty wonderful. That's one reason why the South Park School reunion the other night was so welcome to many of the folk who were pupils a generation ago. It gave them a chance at long last to tell some of their teachers that they thought pretty highly of them back in the old days, and that they still think so.

Back Home Again

It was quite an occasion. Among ex-pupils and teachers covering a 60-year span there was a lot of reminiscing to do and many a near-forgotten face to remember. With Beacon Hill School and Kingston Street included there was a good contingent from the '90s, but the bulk of the attendance seemed to be from the First Great War years and the early '20s.

Those were good years for youngsters. They seemed even better as Chairman Rebel Mowat described them. Rebel hit just the right note, recalling the important part James Bay has played in the history of Victoria, reeling off scores of family names that brought delighted recognition from the crowd, and adding the irrepressible touch of kidding that is his trademark.

If anybody loves his town more than Rebel Mowat I don't know who it could be. We all loved it better just to hear him talk about it.

And right here I would like to quash that scandalous rumor that's been going

THE HOMELY YEW

Without distinction, grace, or pretentious beauty, mostly dumpy, all but shapeless, there is only one word in our language that adequately describes the yew—homely. Comfortable, easy-going, it is completely undemanding. In churchyards, on village greens, in wheelwrights' and blacksmiths' yards, it offers impenetrable shelter from rain and wind and sun, like some large and imperturbable mother. All through the long centuries it has kept company with man, sharing the experience of the living, keeping vigil over the long rest of the dead.

round lately. I got to South Park School before Rebel left. And if he had ever ridden a horse into the school hallway there were certainly no signs of it.

A James Bay youngster passing through the school system in the war and post-war years would likely have come under Mrs. Russell, who was principal of Beacon Hill School, then Mrs. Ford and then Miss Moir. I can remember Mrs. Ford and her sister entertaining our class one afternoon with a little program of instrumental music. I wonder if that could happen in school today?

At South Park — which at first seemed rather dark and crumbling after the relatively new Beacon Hill establishment — our class went into Miss Gordon's room. From there we graduated upstairs to Miss Jean Roberts' class. Next year if you were lucky, you went down the hall to Miss Jessie Roberts, and in our final year we came under Mr. A. Allison Campbell, the principal, who taught Canadian history and arithmetic.

There were shifts in the final year. You marched into Mr. Bevan-Pritchard's room for science, to Miss Long's room for geography and art, and every year into the building next door where Mr. Marston taught manual training.

No Disrespect

Some came under Mr. Fraser, who in a lifetime of teaching must have known he was universally—and with affection—known as "Fuzzy." Similarly it can be no surprise to Jean and Jessie to see here that they were known as Big Roberts and Little Roberts—and if anybody today reads disrespect into that he would be sorely misinterpreting the sentiments of those days. I can still remember how the whole class cheered when Big Roberts returned after a lengthy illness.

Nobody got pally with the teachers in those days. They were teachers and we were pupils and there was no bridge of easy familiarity on our part. But there was a close bond nonetheless. Even the dullest kid could not be in their care without sensing the dedication of their teaching, the sincerity, the almost desperate anxiety they had that no child should pass through their classes without getting at least the fundamentals.

And we did. No teachers taught character; they lived it. And only a fool could fail to learn such a lesson.

Ahead of Them

And the standards? What did the courses cover in those poor old backwoods days? Did we suffer from the "little red schoolhouse" pace?

Many years after my day at South Park Miss Jessie Roberts left to teach at Victoria High School. Recalling this the other evening, she said: "I taught the same grammar at High School that I had taught you people in Grade 7."

These are some of the reasons I was glad to see Mrs. Ford, Miss Gordon, Miss Jean and Miss Jessie Roberts and Miss Long at the reunion, to try to mumble a word of thanks in the uproar of 500 excited voices, and to let them know in some way that no matter how heedless we may have seemed in those days, the years have deepened our appreciation for the things they taught and the values they made real. We are all better because we knew them. Can anyone say more?

HONG KONG:

Starvation By Order

BY JOSEPH ALSOP

FOR over three years, the simple, physical level of life of the Chinese people has been one of the three or four major political problems in the world. How much have the patient, long-suffering Chinese masses been getting to eat? Is the standard of nourishment high enough to be endured indefinitely, or is it so low that the structure of the state itself must eventually be endangered? These have been crucial questions ever since Mao Tse-tung's "great leap forward" plunged the Chinese masses into unprecedented misery.

A dependable answer to these long-standing questions is at last available. According to labor category, the Chinese masses are now receiving a nationwide average of 1,300 to 1,600 calories per day.

Considerable Variations

There are considerable variations from region to region and even from commune to commune. A rich farm commune with good land may provide its workers with a ration of 30 catties (or nearly 32 pounds) of rice per month; whereas a poor commune in the next county may provide as little as 14 catties.

Again, the situation is especially terrible in the poorer regions like northern Manchuria and Shantung province; whereas the lot of the masses is considerably above average in rich areas like the great rice lands along the lower Yangtze river. Nonetheless, the 1,300 to 1,600 calorie average can be regarded as crudely representative for China as a whole.

This is the level of nourishment, mind you, not of clerks in offices, but of farmers who have to till the fields nine or ten hours a day, seven days a week, and even of coal miners. The miners' response may be judged from the nationwide coal famine.

In terms of calories alone, it is therefore no exaggeration—indeed it is an understatement—to say that the Chinese Communists have reduced the Chinese people to a state of creeping starvation. But the calorie intake is not the end of the grisly story.

About 90 per cent of the ration is pure starch, rice in over half of China and grain in the north. Polished rice is almost never issued, and the main vitamin supply of the people in the rice areas therefore comes from rice cortices.

Besides their starch allowance, the people are now getting only a few pounds of vegetables, a couple of ounces of oil each month, and perhaps a few ounces of sugar. Protein has all but vanished from the diet of most of the people of China.

Bed-Rock Standard

Finally, the "standard of nourishment" and the "standard of life" are now almost interchangeable terms in the people's paradise. Besides their rations, the Chinese masses get almost no other rewards for their toil. Cloth, for instance, is rationed at the rate of three or four feet per year!

The above-given calorie averages are as hard facts as modern statistical analysis can provide. They are squarely based on methodical, scientific computation of the ration figures reported by great numbers of the refugees from the mainland who continue to pour into Hong Kong at the rate of thousands a month.

As was unavoidable, more than half of the persons in the very large sample were refugees from neighboring Kwantung province. But the averages were weighted to allow for this fact. Correct weighting of the averages was in turn assured by the more than 40 per cent of persons in the sample who came from other provinces all over China.

In the years since "the great leap forward," immense progress has been made in scientific sifting of the first-hand evidence brought from the Chinese mainland by the refugees. If first-hand evidence means anything at all—and it is the only evidence worth having—the grim figures herein reported must be accepted as reliable.

The worst of it is that these brink-of-famine figures on the food intake of the Chinese masses include the supplements to the rural diet which the generous Peking regime now allows the peasants to grow on tiny private plots. This being the case, the figures raise the question whether Communist China is not caught in a remorselessly descending spiral, from which a vast upheaval of some sort is the only likely means of escape.

If Mr. Bennett Succeeds, This Province Will Lose Half the Columbia Potential

A Letter to the Editor

GENERAL McNAUGHTON, chairman of the International Joint Commission, won for Canada an agreement which would be able to get a total of 3,000, 000 k.w. itself, and from its own dams on the Columbia, and another 1,000, 000 k.w. returned as "downstream benefits" from new power from U.S. dams in U.S.

It would not flood the Arrow Lakes valley, but would flood most of the Kootenay Valley. When Fulton replaced McNaughton as the official negotiator for Canada, the U.S. was willing and eager to sign this agreement without any alteration of McNaughton's terms.

Fulton, in his consultations with the B.C. government, was told by Premier Bennett of B.C. that Bennett would not accept McNaughton's plans for the area below Revelstoke but wanted instead a High Level Arrow Lakes dam which would flood the Arrows valley, and a dam at Duncan Lake. This would not produce any more firm power for anybody, nor increase downstream benefits, nor decrease costs. But the U.S. had no objection to this alteration, and Fulton gave in to Bennett.

Having met what he supposed to be all of Premier Bennett's desires for alteration, Fulton proceeded to arrange a final conference with all three parties—B.C., U.S. and Canada—to sign the agreement thus altered for a treaty.

McNaughton's negotiations with U.S.

had been stalemated for a great many years because McNaughton had always insisted that Canada must have the full flow of the Kootenay for power to the Columbia—turn all the water north to the Columbia, into the Columbia at its headwaters at Canal Flats; but the U.S. had always wanted to build a dam at Libby in Montana for which the full flow of the Kootenay was necessary.

The U.S. could not build this dam to produce electric power without flooding 43 miles of the Kootenay area in Canada; thus Canada could prevent them getting electric power. The Libby dam would be useful to U.S. also for flood control in Montana, but Canadian diversion of the Kootenay would equally well serve U.S. interests in Montana flood controls.

Dams to divert Kootenay water would produce some power themselves but, what was more important, they would put into the Columbia river an amount of water which, passing over all dams on the Columbia in Canada, would increase the total potential of the Columbia by about 1,000,000 k.w. or be about 25 and 35 per cent of the total potential.

This meant that costs of Columbia power would be 25 to 35 per cent less in total.

When Fulton had met all objections raised by Bennett to McNaughton's treaty, the altered form of the draft agreement still contained intact the clauses providing for Kootenay diversion. Knowing how long the U.S. had been insisting on the full flow of the Kootenay, the new negotiators from Washington had replaced McNaughton's opposite numbers, and not wanting any possible loophole left for last-minute arguments, he called a secret conference with U.S. men to ascertain whether or not their understanding of these clauses was the same as McNaughton's explanations of them had been to him.

He found that they were. (Elmer Bennett, chief U.S. negotiator was reported in the Times, April 9th, as saying that the U.S. had offered to give up Libby dam; and permit total Kootenay diversion; to get an agreement). Neither Fulton nor his opposites of U.S. had any reason to prolong this final conference beyond formalities of signature.

But suddenly, in the midst of formal re-reading of clauses, when Kootenay diversion clauses came up the B.C. government representative declared emphatically that the B.C. government would not build the Kootenay dams NOR PERMIT ANYONE ELSE TO DO SO. This astonished everybody.

Fulton immediately called a recess to speak privately to the B.C. man who, he supposed, must be mixed up. If not this was a most serious, open sabotage of Canada's national interests, an interference by a Canadian province in negotiations with a foreign power in the presence of that foreign power.

But the B.C. representative told Fulton that he had got only a second best treaty, but thought it good enough to accept in the circumstances. He had been instructed to do by Premier Bennett and in the way he had been told to do it. It put Fulton personally in an unfortunate position because it made him appear to the U.S. to be either a cadish diplomat or a stupid one; and it put the new Washington negotiators in the position before their Army Engineers (who had held out to the last against the concession to Canada and still disapproved of it) who were present, of having given up what they did not have to.

Loss of face on both sides prompted the Washington men to try to entice Fulton with a generous compromise.

The U.S. offered to take only a five-year option for Libby dam, and to re-write that part of the agreement to provide that if Libby dam were not built in Montana within five years, Canada might then divert a great portion of Kootenay water into the Columbia.

The U.S. men confidently expected that the Republicans would win the forthcoming election, in which case it would be unlikely that private power interests would get the right to build the Libby dam; and Fulton hoped that another later B.C. premier could retrieve the benefits McNaughton had gained but Premier Bennett was rejecting.

Fulton candidly admitted to the public when the negotiations were concluded that he had got only a second best treaty, but thought it good enough to accept in the circumstances. He had been instructed to do by Premier Bennett and in the way he had been told to do it. It put Fulton personally in an unfortunate position because it made him appear to the U.S. to be either a cadish diplomat or a stupid one; and it put the new Washington negotiators in the position before their Army Engineers (who had held out to the last against the concession to Canada and still disapproved of it) who were present, of having given up what they did not have to.

But newspapers and public seem always to have missed the point that he was referring specifically to Kootenay diversion. Fulton had agreed to High Arrow with his eyes open; but the Kootenay veto was sprung on him in the presence of the U.S.

Premier Bennett soon explained to the public that his reasons for the veto were that it would flood settled areas in the Kootenay Valley; but the Libby dam will flood 43 miles of the same area! And he had no objection to flooding the Arrow Valley totally. In fact he insisted, although McNaughton's plans would have provided an equal amount of power without flooding any of it.

By vetoing the Kootenay, Premier Bennett reduced the future potential of the Columbia in Canada by 1,000,000 k.w., almost equal to the present production of B.C. Electric, and thus increased the future over-all costs of Columbia power by between 25 and 35 per cent.

He prevented future power production in B.C. of an amount about equal to the downstream benefits. If he succeeds in his intention to sell downstream benefits to the U.S. this province will have lost half the potential of the Columbia, one quarter of it FOREVER.

If this treaty goes through, B.C. will also have lost forever its opportunity to divert the Columbia into the Fraser system, and to increase the Fraser potential by both Columbia and Kootenay diversions.

So McNaughton seems to be right when he says that Canada was "skinned alive." But when Elmer Bennett, the U.S. negotiator, argues that it is unfair to charge that U.S. did the skinning, he has some grounds. Actually it was Premier Bennett who did the skinning; we can hardly blame the U.S. from hurrying to take advantage.

One point is clear: The U.S. was ready and eager to sign a treaty on McNaughton's terms in 1959. So far from objecting to the Kootenay diversion were they, that they now tell us candidly that they OFFERED it and offered to abandon Libby dam.

There would appear to be a good possibility of U.S. readiness to sign the original draft now or in the very near future. It was not the U.S. which found McNaughton's terms unacceptable.

It was Premier Bennett. The alterations he demanded will flood two valleys, and reduce power potential in total by half. Moreover, B.C. is obliged to pay for expropriations and to prepare the Kootenay valley for flooding by the Libby dam in Montana.

What Is Uric Acid?

People keep begging me to tell them what is uric acid; why it causes gout; and how one can keep away from the stuff. Uric acid is one of the chemicals which forms in the body during the digestion of the proteins such as are found in meats, chicken, fish and eggs.

Alvarez

Large amounts of the special chemicals from which uric acid is made are to be found in liver, kidneys and sweetbreads. But leaving these foods out of the diet will not always solve the patient's problem or give relief because much of the uric acid in the body is not taken in with the food; it is made in the body.

It is the same with cholesterol; it is useless to try to go on a cholesterol-free diet because large amounts of the substance can be made in the body.

The big trouble with many gouty people is that they inherited a tendency to the disease. Their body lacks enough of a "ferment" which, in normal persons, serves to split the uric acid into simpler and smaller chemicals, which then can be excreted (thrown out of the body) by the kidneys.

There are a number of chronic or life-long diseases which, years ago, were well-known by Dr. Garrod of England — "Inborn Errors of Metabolism (body chemistry)." He wrote a famous book on these diseases, and now new ones constantly are being found.

Fortunately, we have a few drugs which help in cases of gout. The old colchicine is still good to abort an acute attack. Butazolidine can relieve much of the pain, and Benemid can help the body to get rid of the uric acid.

It helps much to stay thin, and in some cases it helps much to leave liquor alone. When I was young, doctors used to speak of the "rich man's gout," thought to be brought on by drinking champagne, and the "poor man's gout," thought to be due to drinking beer. My good friend, Dr. John Talbott (editor of the Journal of the AMA) has written an excellent book on gout (Grune and Stratton). I do not know how much a layman who is not a chemist could get out of reading it, but Dr. Talbott's English is very readable. People certainly will be much interested in his fascinating chapter on the heredity of the disease.

The big trouble with gout is that, so commonly, the physician does not think of it, and hence when he sees a man with one very painful joint, he thinks only of arthritis and fails to note that the poor fellow has gout. Examination of the blood usually shows a larger than normal amount of uric acid. X-ray studies may show defects in the bones, typical of gout, and examination of the lobes of the ears may show little white nodules (tophi) made of uric acid.

As I said recently, anyone who occasionally wakes at 2 a.m. with an excruciating pain in one big toe joint has gout. After a week or two, the "storm" tends to calm down.

After a lot of scary articles in lay magazines, some people have become afraid even to have their teeth or their chest x-rayed. One woman writes me today saying, "My dentist says there is absolutely no danger, but why then, when he turns on the switch, does he always go back of the screen?"

I have no fear at all of getting x-rayed, and for 36 years I have had a checkup every year in which my chest, stomach and bowel were x-rayed — often also my teeth. But if I were x-raying people all day, I would have to avoid an over-exposure; and so I would stand back of the screen. In most x-ray departments today, every worker has a little piece of apparatus about as big as a small match-box attached to his coat. With this, he can check up every so often to see that the total dosage of x-rays which he gets every month is not too large.

I have known as close friends many of the pioneers in x-ray work — men like Dr. Cannon who began using x-rays in 1896 — within a year after they were discovered. Many of these pioneers, before they learned that the rays were dangerous, got their skin changed a bit so that it looked like that of an old man. But many of them, like Dr. Cannon and Dr. Pfahler, lived to a ripe old age. So far as I have heard, most of them died of a disease that was not definitely related to their early over-exposure to the rays.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Down With Aldershot!

LONDON—If you were in the Canadian army overseas during the last two major wars and are planning a trip to England this summer, here's something brand new and highly pleasant to add to your sight-seeing list:

Why not drop down to Aldershot and watch them pulling the place down?

The barracks, I mean—those cold, dreary, forlorn buildings that got their start in 1852 and always looked back.

Demolition has started, as part of the war office scheme that will cost $46,500,000 and will eventually provide Aldershot with bright and airy new barracks, with central heating and all other mod. cons.

The 27 barracks and surrounding buildings are being bowled over by 15 cwt. solid steel balls swinging from 65-ft. cranes—which sounds far more efficient than the way Canadian troops tried to do it in 1945. Many of the demolition workers who were Aldershot-sufferers during the war regard this as the most pleasurable work they've ever undertaken.

But there's one man who's sorry to see the barracks go. A sergeant-major, of course.

Says he: "These old barracks used to break a man's heart and make him fighting mad. And there's nothing better than an angry soldier."

May come as a surprise to you that the circulation of the Times is only 253,000. It now moves to bottom of the circulation list of Britain's national newspapers—due to the Guardian's decision last fall to print in London, as well as in its home town of Manchester.

Ever so politely, the Guardian buried away in a corner the announcement that the joint Manchester-London printing had enabled them to overhaul the Times, a 50,000 increase bringing them to over 300,000.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

Builders, Spare Those Trees!

This weekend I saw some arbutus trees being pushed over by a bulldozer.

Whether or not it was necessary in order to make space for the house to be erected I had no means of knowing. Too frequently, however, we see lovely woodland areas cleared before any actual siting of the houses starts.

Hilda

Perhaps the builder would do better to have a house architect and a landscape architect look over the area before he begins the clearing. The houses could then be designed to fit into the existing natural beauty, and would require far less artificial adornment to make them appealing to prospective owners. Our native arbutus, fir and dogwood trees should be left in place wherever possible to fit in with our western way of life. They were a part of the landscape 100 years ago when the City of Victoria was founded, and there is no good reason why in such a relatively short period these fine natives should have been pushed back to the very outskirts of the surrounding municipalities. In a heavily industrialized city it is understandable and inevitable since forest trees cannot withstand the barrage of fumes and smoke.

If any are to remain in the southern end of Vancouver Island, there must be a concerted effort between the real estate developers, the owners of the land to be opened for building, and the buying public.

When the builders find the public is beginning to insist on native growth being retained as much as possible in order to develop gardens along more informal lines, it will be in their interests to take all precautions against unnecessary damage.

It is known that when soft-wood forest trees are isolated as specimens and exposed on all sides to the elements when they are already advanced in age, they can become a danger to homes during winter gales. This is where the services are required of either a landscape man who has studied the native trees for years, or of a forestry man who is interested in conservation.

Think more than once before removing any of our fine trees, whether you are the architect, the builder, or the buyer.

If you are the bulldozer operator, there isn't much you can do about it except drown your sorrow in the racket of your machine.

JOINT NOTE ON VIET NAM REJECTED

... takes office

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Britain today rejected a Soviet proposal that a joint Anglo-Soviet message be sent to the United States urging an end to U.S. "interference" in South Viet Nam.

The Soviet proposal was in a note dated March 17, accompanying a Soviet foreign ministry statement sent to all countries participating in the 1954 Geneva conference on Indochina. Britain and the Soviet Union were co-chairmen of the conference.

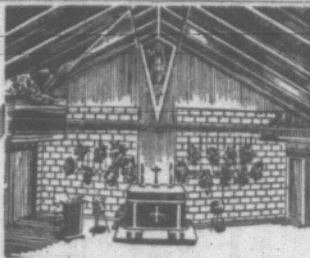

The British reply, delivered by messenger to the Soviet foreign ministry, said Britain regretted that the Soviet Union had ignored its request that the two countries should send a joint message to the Communist North Vietnamese authorities.

The British reply said: "In the view of Her Majesty's government it is these activities which are the root of the present troubles in South Viet Nam and which threaten the peace and stability of Southeast Asia."

GAULLISTS DOMINANT

Key Ministers Retained In France's New Cabinet

PARIS (AP)—A new French cabinet under Premier Georges Pompidou took office today with all the key ministers in Michel Debre's government retaining their jobs.

No new parties were represented in Pompidou's cabinet and the Gaullist union for a new republic remained dominant with 12 of the 22 posts.

Pompidou, longtime confidant of President de Gaulle, has no political affiliation. He gave up his job as general director of the Rothschild bank to take over from Debre.

Debre resigned Saturday after three years and three months as premier. He said he had left free to step down since the basis of a settlement of the Algerian independence problem had been approved by the nation.

De Gaulle warmly thanked the outgoing premier for his loyal efforts and wished him well. There were reports, however, that the two men did not agree on the question of early parliamentary elections.

Debre favored elections in May in view of de Gaulle's popularity because of the ending of the Algerian war. De Gaulle was reported to have felt the present assembly would carry on his program.

Pompidou brought in nine new ministers, but he retained Debre's key men, including Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville, Interior Minister Roger Frey, Defence Minister Pierre Messmer, Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing and Louis Joxe, minister for Algerian affairs.

The most important additions were former premier Pierre Pflimlin as minister of state for co-operation with African states; Maurice Schumann, national planning; and Gaston Palewski, scientific research.

Among those moved out were Pierre Guillaumat, scientific research; Lucien Paye, education; and Bernard Chenot, justice. All were former civil servants without party backing.

Besides Pompidou and the Gaullists, the cabinet includes five members of the Roman Catholic Popular Republican movement, three independents and one Democratic leftist.

U.S. to Renounce 'First Strike'?

CHICAGO (AP)—The Sunday Times said Saturday the State Department and Pentagon are studying a strategic plan under which the United States would renounce striking a first nuclear blow except in retaliation for a massive conventional attack.

The newspaper said in a Washington dispatch that the plan is incorporated in a 285-page document prepared by Walt W. Rostow, former White House defence adviser who now heads the State Department's planning staff.

OFFICIAL POLICY

It added that the plan is being reviewed for possible adoption by the National Security Council as the official defence policy of the United States.

The article, by Thomas B. Ross, said: "Rostow's plan recommends a revamping of the nation's arsenal to eliminate first-strike weapons — bombers and missiles that are vulnerable to sneak attack and, therefore, reliable only for striking the first atomic blow."

"At the same time, the plan cautions that the nation may not be properly armed for a pure second-strike strategy for many years and President Kennedy should not now be restricted in striking first if necessary."

"However, the Rostow plan flatly rejects the concept of preventive attack—hitting an enemy first on intelligence reports that he is about to hit you."

"The United States should

HEAT-DEFYING PLANE AIMS AT SPEED RECORD

BRISTOL, Eng. (AP)—The Bristol 188, Britain's first all stainless steel experimental aircraft, made a 22-minute maiden flight Saturday.

The needle-nosed aircraft is designed to test the heat barrier found at 2,000 miles an hour. It has a refrigerated cockpit to protect pilot and instruments.

Average speed on the test flight was only 380 m.p.h., but it will be the world's fastest conventional plane and is expected to capture the world air speed record for Britain.

Bill's Old Putter Trips Dick Munn at 19th Hole

BY ERNIE FEDORUK

It's a good thing Bill McCall doesn't cut a notch into the handle every time his ancient, wooden-shafted putter beats a golfing rival into submission. If that was a habit, William would now be working on his umpteenth handle.

The putter did the job again Sunday and the man behind the battered blade figures it was because of the fact he lined up a putt "from the front, for a change."

McCall dropped a tricky six-footer on the 19th hole to put medalist Dick Munn out of the running in the Times Vancouver Island Open championship.

The extra-hole match was the feature for the gallery as McCall, Bill Wakeham, Laurie Kerr and Ron MacLeod advanced to the semifinals of the Island's major fairway event. It's McCall against Wakeham, and Kerr against MacLeod as three former champions and a perennial all-arounder move to Uplands for next Sunday's 36-hole semifinals.

The finals, also over 36 holes, will be played April 29 at the ocean-rimmed Victoria Golf Club.

Playing at Gorge Vale Sunday, Wakeham defeated Chappell 4 and 3; MacLeod sidelined Gord Jones 4 and 2, and by a similar margin Kerr bounced the last out-of-town hope, Gord Whan of Cowichan.

The big match, however, turned out to be McCall's extra-hole conquest of Munn. And, to McCall's way of thinking, it was able to happen because he took a head-on view of the line his game-winning putt followed.

"I never, never study a putt from in front," he said later. "I knew there was a break, but I couldn't see it by looking from behind. That was probably the first time I ever looked at a putt from in front."

It was a heart-breaking loss for Munn, who hit the green in regulation figures while McCall narrowly avoided rolling into a trap when he pushed his approach out to the right. McCall then chipped six feet past the cup and the advantage fell to Munn.

Munn Calls Penalty on Himself

Munn, however, failed to capitalize when he wound up by three-putting. He "stuffed" his first putt and ended about two inches in front of McCall's ball. Then Munn missed his try for a par four, McCall didn't, and that was the ball game.

Munn, who expected McCall to be at his best on the greens, felt he "missed the boat" when he called a penalty on himself on the third hole.

"The more I look at it," he said as he returned to the clubhouse, "the bigger that penalty becomes."

The "penalty" occurred while Munn was addressing his ball for the approach to the third green. In looking up at the pin, he inadvertently moved the ball with his clubhead.

Although the biggest gallery of the day followed the Munn-McCall match, nobody appeared to notice the rules infraction.

Accurate Chip Shots Rescue Ron

McCall ran into grief on the par-five 15th while Munn unleashed two great shots to hit the green in two. McCall was willing to concede Dick an eagle and Munn's "just for fun" putt for a three was light by about four inches.

A great three-iron shot won the 16th for Munn. He missed a hole-in-one when the ball stopped 18 inches from the cup, on line all the way. The easy birdie squared the match.

They halved the 17th with par fours and the 18th with bogey fives. Munn was too strong with a nine-iron approach on the 18th, while McCall three-putted for the first time in the match. That match, MacLeod, a three-time finalist still looking for his first Times Open championship, hit only eight of 16 greens but accurate chips rescued him on several holes.

Whan, like Munn, found the third hole an upsetting one. Whan appeared to have the hole won but he missed an 18-inch putt and wound up losing it to Kerr's bogey five. When Whan also took double bogeys on the next two, Kerr went three up and never looked back.

Two Gorge Vale golfers face a pair from Colwood in the semi-finals of the handicap championship for the Hugh Francis Trophy.

Stan Evans and Jim Neilson takes on Colwood's Rickie Kent.

Punch, Leafs Staggered By Rough Black Hawks

Chicago Wins Everything But Penalty Competition

CHICAGO (CP)—Some hockey fans might have believed Chicago Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs switched uniforms before their third Stanley Cup final game Sunday night. But it was no masquerade.

The Hawks, paties against Leafs in the opening two games in Toronto in this best-of-seven series, reversed the script as they hammered their tormentors 3-0 to step back into contention for their second straight title.

The Hawks forechecked the Leafs silly, just as Toronto did to them last Tuesday and Thursday when Leafs won 4-1 and 3-2. And this time the Hawks pounded every wearer of a blue- and -white uniform who dared to close in on goalkeeper Glenn Hall.

Two goals in a space of three minutes and 58 seconds in the second period scuttled any thoughts Toronto might have had of taking this one and going into Tuesday night's engagement with a 3-0 lead in games. Those counters finished the Leafs and, for good measure, the Hawks scored with 39 seconds of the game remaining and with goaltender Johnny Bower watching from the bench.

OPENS SCORING
Stan Mikita opened the scoring at 4:35 after latching onto a clearing pass from Toronto defenseman Allan Stanley.

The second goal by Ab McDonald at 8:33 came on a

Hawks power play as Carl Brewer, another Leaf defenseman, sat out a holding penalty. Bronco Horvath backhanded a 15-footer into the empty net at 19:21 of the third period.

Team captain Pierre Pilote was the Black Hawks playmaker on the second - period goals. He carried the puck into the Toronto end on both and was particularly brilliant on McDonald's goal when he stick-handled to power's doorstep. The Toronto goalie was sitting on the ice when Pilote passed to McDonald, who eased the puck into the net.

Toronto never was a serious threat. Leaf snipers had only 19 shots on Hall and many of them were from bad angles.

IMLACH EXPLAINS
Coach Punch Imlach of the Leafs came up with the understatement of the night when he told reporters "we were outstuffed, outskated and outthought."

He closed the dressing room door to reporters for a few minutes and said later: "I told 'em, 'if you're going to win, you don't do it by letting the other guys do all the work.'"

Referee Eddie Powers never allowed the game to get out of control. In the opening minutes tempers bristled when about six players, three from each side, jostled and shoved. Powers and linesmen Matt Pavlich and Neil Armstrong separated them before any damage was done.

Powers handed out 11 penalties, seven to the Leafs, including a 10-minute misconduct to Dick Duff for sassing him after Chicago's final goal.

Duff said he argued that Chicago's Eric Nesterenko, who received an assist on Horvath's goal, had carried the puck in his hand from behind his own blue-line almost to the red line.

Duff complained to Powers and said the referee told him he didn't see the infraction. Duff was slapped with the misconduct, which carries an automatic $25 fine, when he asked Powers just where he was looking.

Island Drivers Finish Far Back in Car Rally

VANCOUVER (CP)—A North American compact car and a trio of little French imports shared the major honors in the second running of the 4,000-mile Canadian auto rally.

John Jones and Lou Lalonde of Toronto brought their Studebaker Lark across with first-place in the over-all standings.

The manufacturer's team prize winners were three Renaults, entered by the Canadian branch of the famed French firm and piloted by six experienced rallyists from the Montreal district.

"We had 21 points to play around with and took no chances," Lalonde said as he wheeled the Lark out of the rain and under a finish-line canopy.

They picked up three penalty-points on the last lap from Trail Saturday and ended the week-long grind from Montreal to Vancouver with a total of 30.

WILL GET PRIZES

Second were Jerry Polivka and Charles Bick of Toronto in a factory-entered Volvo with 54 points. Trail's Jimmie MacFadyen, Mick, and Don Hamblay of Oshawa finished third in a Chevy II with 90.

The results became official, although still subject to appeal to international motor sport bodies, after rally organizers heard and ruled on protests at a Sunday morning meeting. Prizes will be presented at a banquet tonight.

31 CROSS LINE

Thirty-one of the 42 cars that left Montreal in another rainstorm a week ago crossed the finish line here. Seven of 31 will not be classed as finishers, however, because of excessive penalty points—mostly incurred on the rugged first lap over rural roads from Montreal to Toronto.

Two Vancouver Island Firefighters, GPW T L F A P, finished in 17:17.12. Vancouver, 4:13:13.39. North Shore, 4:10:13.44. Canadian, 4:10:13.44. New Westminster, 4:10:13.44. St. Andrews, 4:10:13.44.

PILOUS ON SERIES:

'The Longer The Better'

CHICAGO (AP)—"This is a tougher series than against Montreal, but we won a big one tonight," said coach Rudy Pilous after his Chicago Black Hawks blanked Toronto Maple Leafs 3-0.

GLENN HALL gets shutout

The victory which broke the ice for the Hawks in the Stanley Cup finals after dropping the first two games was credited by Pilous to a three-day rest.

"We were really tired after coming back to take four straight from Montreal after dropping the first two," said Pilous. "We were still tired in the first two final games at Toronto."

The Hawk coach conceded that his club still is faced with an uphill fight.

"But being on our home ice tonight (Sunday) and again Tuesday is a big help," said Pilous.

"Another day's rest is going to help us some more and we may be in the same fettle as when we came back against Montreal."

WE WERE OUTTHUSTLED

"We were outthustled and that's all there was to it," said Toronto coach Punch Imlach. "We were far off from our first two games."

Asked if his club might be getting tired, Imlach replied: "We shouldn't be any more tired than Chicago."

Imlach explained his various line manoeuvres as an "attempt to get someone to score a goal."

Pilous said the longer the series goes "the better chance we have."

"I think we're a heavier club as far as checking goes and Toronto is a tough checking team—probably the toughest we have faced."

He praised goalie Glenn Hall and said the toughest stop he made Sunday night was a closing shot by Dick Duff.

Imlach said "we couldn't get control of the game... at any time. They wouldn't give us a chance and when we have a chance, we didn't take advantage of it."

Bill Casper Rallies To Grab Top Prize

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Bill Casper recovered from a three-stroke deficit in the last nine holes Sunday to win the $35,000 Greensboro open golf tournament by one stroke over Mike Souchak.

Casper finished with a three-under-par 68 for a 275 total to win top money of $5,300. Souchak turned in a 69 for 276 and runner-up money of $3,400.

Sam Snead, playing with Souchak in the final three holes, also scored 69 for 278. They were the only competitors in the 18-hole to better par—every round in the $35,000 tournament.

with a 44-36-80. His total for the tournament was 303. George Knudson of Toronto was eliminated Saturday.

The victory for Casper boosted him into second place in the year's money list with $22,600 in earnings.

Souchak played the last four holes in four over par to let victory slip away. He shot the back nine in 38.

Casper had rounds of 69-70-68-68 and Souchak 68-69-70-69. They were the only competitors in the 18-hole to better par—every round in the $35,000 tournament.

NORTH SHORE UPSETS UNITED

Spoilers Come Alive in Soccer League

VANCOUVER—The "spoilers" are starting to go to work in the Pacific Coast Soccer League.

Hot candidates for the league's second-half championship—Victoria United and Vancouver Columbus both dropped important matches at the weekend. The score, in each case, was 2-1.

North Shore Cs, after failing to score a goal against Victoria's Barry Sadler in four previous games this season, finally solved the riddle Saturday. Bob Smith, the league's top scorer, scored both goals for North Shore as Cs handed United a severe jolt in the team's bid to regain undisputed possession of first place.

United played the better soccer and held a major share of offensive edge but couldn't crack North Shore's defence.

North Shore took a 1-0 lead at the half and made it 2-0 early in the second, then packed the defence to hold off United. Goalkeeper Bob Bissett was outstanding in containing Victoria's all-out attacks in the second half.

A great effort by centre forward Geoff Hill accounted for Victoria's only goal at the 15-minute mark in the second half.

Sunday, the hustling young Canadians refused to be overawed by powerful Columbus and scored their well-deserved victory before 2,200 fans at Callister Park.

Defeat dimmed Columbus' hopes for second-half honors. The Italian team, which meets United at Royal Athletic Park on Good Friday, won the first-half title and will play the second-half winners for the league championship.

Columbus was a badly-disjointed team throughout most of the game, with the Canadians dominating midfield play.

Centre forward Neil McEachnie scored his 15th goal of the season to give Canadians a 1-0 half-time lead and rookie Gordie Glen scored his first goal in senior company 24 minutes into the second half to clinch the victory.

The Columbus goal came nine minutes from the end of the game on a long screen shot from outside right Roy Nosella, which gave goalie Hans Lee little chance to save.

The loss left Columbus in third place in league standings, three points behind the co-leaders, Victoria and the Firefighters.

Money Dispute Rocks Canadian Pro Soccer

TORONTO (CP)—A financial dispute involving the three Montreal teams in the Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League has caused their withdrawal from the league.

The Montreal clubs—Cantalia, Ukraina and Hungaria—failed to put up $1,000 each, their share of the league operational costs.

However, ESPSL president Harold Ballard was more optimistic. He said the matter probably would be straightened out in a few days.

league will start the season next month with five teams.

Toronto officials said Sunday night the five starting teams will be Italia, Roma and City, all from Toronto; Hamilton Steelers; and Buffalo White Eagles.

Bucs on Beam; Grab Top Berth

By UP International
Amid all the hoopla over the early-season heroics of the San Francisco Giants and Houston Colt 45s, the Pittsburgh Pirates have posted a gentle reminder that they are still in the National League.

Remember the Pirates? They were world champions in 1960 only to nose-dive into a humiliating sixth-place finish in 1961.

Well, they're leading the league today with a perfect 4-0 slate and one very good reason is the return to form of Bob Friend, who won 18 games in 1960 but slumped to a 14-19 record in 1961.

Friend scored his second straight nine-inning victory of the season Sunday when he pitched the Pirates to a 7-2 win over the New York Mets. Friend, who shut out the Philadelphia Phillies on opening day, thus has allowed only 11 hits and two runs in 18 innings.

Batterymate Smokey Burgess assured the Pirates' fourth straight victory by capping a five-run rally with a three-run homer off loser Roger Craig in the third inning.

REDS CLIP GIANTS
The second game of the scheduled doubleheader was snowed out in the third inning with the Mets leading, 2-0.

The Cincinnati Reds handed the Giants their first loss of the season, 4-3, and the Milwaukee Braves scored their first victory of the campaign, 6-3, over the Los Angeles Dodgers in other N. L. games.

In the American League, the Boston Red Sox beat the Baltimore Orioles, 5-4, after a 5-1 defeat, the Chicago White Sox

Teams represented at Sunday's meeting were Victoria Cougars, Esquimalt Bruins,

Esquimalt Crew In B.C. Tourney

Esquimalt Legion became the third Victoria-area team to qualify for B.C.'s greatest minor soccer show, the "Tournament of Champions."

The two-day tournament will be played in Victoria for the first time this year, starting April 28.

Esquimalt blanked North Vancouver Eagles 3-0 Saturday on goals by Peter Herold, Richard Allen and Brian McIntyre in their Division III playoff.

But for two lapses in clearing, Victoria's Gorge Hotel today might have been looking forward to meeting "new faces" in the Province Cup soccer competition. As it stands, however, Gorge has to have another look at Vancouver's Royal Oak side.

Gorge and the visiting Oaks played through 30 minutes of overtime at Royal Athletic Park but failed to settle their quarterfinal meeting. The 22 draw forces a replay with the date and site to be announced later.

Gorge, playing one of its best games of the season, allowed Oaks only two good scoring chances in the second half. As the fates would have it, Oaks scored both times. Both Vancouver goals, first by Steve Murray and the second by Gary Hope with only about six minutes left in regulation time, resulted from scrambles and when more alert clearing by the Hotelmen might have prevented a score.

Ian Holroyd scored Gorge's first goal and Chummy Crabbe connected for the second as Gorge carried the offensive edge throughout most of the regulation time.

Oaks played most of the second half without regular goal-keeper Graham Frezell. He injured his groin in making a diving save on a shot by Holroyd. Centre half Ron Willis took over in goal.

Released Cubans Under Medical Care

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Doctors expect to spend much of this week making tests to determine what treatment is needed by the 60 wounded or ill Cuba invasion prisoners who were brought to Miami Saturday.

Two of the negotiators who obtained the men's freedom with a promise to pay the $2,000,000 they had been fined by a military tribunal planned to go to New York to start a campaign for raising $82,000,000, the total amount of the fines levied on the 1,179 captives.

EDUCATION OPENS UP DOG HORIZONS

LONDON (AP) — Mrs. Sybil Zabolosky paid £50 to give her Alsatian dog Kim three months of obedience training. He graduated with honors.

But Mrs. Zabolosky reported Sunday that her educated dog was lost. He ran away while she was taking him home from the obedience school and ignored her shouts to return.

Park Work Studied For Inmates

An official of the William Head minimum security prison said Saturday a proposal for inmates to develop park facilities in the Thetis Lake area will be put before the Penitentiary Services Commission.

"The inmates are all in favor of doing anything they can to help the community," said Henry Collins, assistant warden at William Head.

The idea was put forward by Ald. Michael Griffin while addressing 25 William Head inmates graduating as members of a class in public speaking, sponsored by the Leadership Training Institute of Victoria.

He suggested developing park facilities in the city's 1,200-acre Thetis Lake watershed on a voluntary basis. The plan included clearing trails, roads and the preparation of improved beach sites.

City employees and Victoria Labor Council have approved the rehabilitation scheme.

Pilot Ignores Gunman's Order

AMSTERDAM (Reuters) — The pilot of a Dutch commercial airliner calmly landed his plane today in defiance of a "fly to East Berlin" order from a passenger brandishing a pistol.

The pistol turned out to be a starter's gun, but veteran Capt. J. R. Van Keppel, 30, didn't know that when he put his KLM Royal Dutch Airlines plane back down at Schiphol Airport a few minutes after taking off.

Police seized the passenger and identified him as a Portuguese who had been employed temporarily as a cook in a KLM restaurant at Schiphol. He was being sent home for free on the flight to Chile via Lisbon.

Van Keppel told reporters that a few minutes after take-off his mechanic heard noises in the passengers' cabin and, upon investigating, reported one of the passengers had a pistol. Van Keppel immediately informed the control tower here he would return. Shortly before he was due to land the gunman, his hand clutching the pistol in his pocket, came into the cockpit and sent the other crew members to the passengers' cabin. There the 51 passengers huddled nervously in the rear of the plane.

"I want to go to the Soviet zone of Berlin," the gunman told Van Keppel.

"O.K., yes, yes," replied the pilot.

"Do what I tell you," the Portuguese shouted nervously.

"My life has no value. I have my orders."

Van Keppel told reporters that due to low clouds the gunman didn't see the ground until the plane was a few hundred yards from the runway.

"What is the matter?" the gunman asked in broken English.

"Engine no good," answered the Dutchman.

"Fly on, fly on," ordered the Portuguese. But Van Keppel coolly put the airliner down. Police cars already were drawn up on the tarmac along with fire apparatus.

'Outsiders' to Decorate Douglas

Saanich is using three "foreigners" to beautify its portion of Douglas. Street as part of the Capital Improvement District Commission project to enhance the appearance of the approaches to the city.

The trees, 100 in number, are being planted by municipal crews today in special precast concrete tubs. None of the trees come from British Columbia.

Trees selected are the red oak, a native of southeastern Canada. Its a tough specie and can stand long periods of drought, sometimes growing as high as 80 feet.

The tulip tree, a native of eastern United States, does well in this area. It's a tall tree and in spring is bedecked with greenish tulip-shaped flowers.

The flowering plum, a smaller tree, was originally developed in Japan.

Best Richmond, parks superintendent, said the ornamental plum trees are only being planted at the back of bus bays and in front of a group of stores. The oaks and the tulip trees are being planted along the remainder of Douglas.

WITNESS CONVERT NEAR DEATH

'His Own Decision' to Refuse Blood

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — "I think Billy's got more faith than any of us," says the brother of a young man near death after refusing blood transfusions because of his religious beliefs.

Billy Faulkner, 22, a grocery-store clerk and a former high school athlete, may die if he doesn't get the transfusions, doctors say.

"Billy made his own decision," said his brother, Buddy, 18.

Billy, the father of three, became a Jehovah's Witness—his wife's religion—when he was married. Jehovah's Witnesses contend the Bible forbids blood transfusions.

Faulkner was admitted to a hospital a week ago with internal hemorrhaging from ulcers. Doctors said Sunday his hemoglobin count has dropped from a normal 14 to four. A transfusion would build up the count to a point where surgery could be used to halt the internal bleeding.

His parents have pleaded with him to change his mind but his wife, who converted Faulkner to her religion only prays.

"He has no hope unless he takes some blood," said the Relatives are trying to get a court order to require Faulkner to accept the transfusion, but according to legal opinion, such a directive cannot be issued while the patient is mentally competent.

Faulkner has signed releases to the hospital and doctors absolving them of the blame if he dies.

CLAIM that former French premier Georges Bidault has joined the ranks of the Secret Army Organization is made in a leaflet circulated in Algiers today. An opponent of Gen. de Gaulle, Bidault, 62, left his home in France a month ago for a "secret destination." The OAS leaflet says he has assumed leadership of the "National Council of Resistance" in metropolitan France.

700 Enjoy Easter Music At Cathedral

An audience of more than 700 enjoyed the Easter music of Bach, Handel and Gibbons in a choral recital of sacred music in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday afternoon.

The choir, conducted by Richard Proudman and accompanied by Catherine Shore on the organ, was heard to full effect in Bach's beautiful cantata "Come let us go up to Jerusalem."

Soloists were Eleanor Ashford, contralto; Donald Twine, tenor, and John Dunbar, baritone, and special obligatos were provided by Woodford Garrigus on the oboe and Gustave Lamberts on the cello.

The accompanying service was conducted by Dean Brian Whitlow.

Stop-Go Sign Improvement Eases Driving

Easier motoring downtown has been credited to the city traffic department's program of improving stop-go signal installations.

The new installations—already up at six Government Street intersections—suspend traffic signals 15 feet above the traffic lanes held by a 10 to 12-foot boom.

Fifteen more intersections, along Douglas and Blanshard, will be equipped this summer with the mountings on 30-foot-high light standards erected along side streets and at corners.

A vast improvement in visibility, the new installations comply with the recently adopted Canadian uniform traffic code aimed at improving traffic aids and establishing the same standards in all cities.

As fast as the signals are revamped, improved and more visible street name plates are being erected at the intersections.

Health Plan Bars Legal Liability

REGINA (CP).— Latest changes in Saskatchewan's proposed compulsory, prepaid, medical care insurance plan involve relieving patients of liability for payments and court action for medical bills.

The amendments to the 1961 Medical Care Insurance Act were given final approval by the provincial legislature Saturday. Provincial Treasurer A. E. Blakeney said the amendments will not limit the rights of doctors.

The government has announced its plans to put the scheme into effect July 1.

Meanwhile, doctors of the Swift Current region, 140 miles west of Regina, Sunday expressed opposition to the scheme and called for an extraordinary general meeting of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Bursary-Loan Offer Made By C.A.R.S.

The Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society is offering bursaries-loans to high school students.

This is being done in the hope that new staff members will be recruited to offset the great shortage of qualified physiotherapists in Canada. Trying to keep as many branches in operation as possible, C.A.R.S. is operating on a restricted staff.

C.A.R.S. is offering up to $500 bursary loans for Grade 13 students to attend UBC or one of the other five Canadian Universities with medical rehabilitation departments.

$100 PRIZE

A prize of $100 will also be awarded to high school students for the best job study on physical medicine therapy.

All entries should be addressed to C.A.R.S., 645 West Broadway, Vancouver 9, not later than May 31. Members of the Canadian Physiotherapy Association, the Canadian Occupational Therapy Association and of the press will judge them.

This offer may take the form of a bursary, a loan or a combination of both.

The society says a loan may become an outright gift if the graduate returns to work for C.A.R.S. in which case repayment at the rate of $30 a month may be waived.

A spokesman said any benefit received could be renewed in second and third years of study but applicants must have a 60 per cent or better average.

Smallpox Kills More

BRIDGEND, Wales (AP).— Two women died of smallpox in a hospital isolation ward Sunday bringing the total dead from the disease in South Wales to nine in as many days. The victims, all women, were transferred here with nine other elderly women from Glamorgan Mental Hospital nine days ago.

PLAN FINDS FAVOR

A pilot project for the medical care scheme was launched in the Swift Current region in 1946. The Swift Current and District Medical Society, in a brief to a government advisory committee more than a year ago, said at that time the public and doctors were reasonably satisfied with that plan.

In Toronto, Saturday Dr. Arthur D. Kelly, general secretary of the Canadian Medical Association, said many doctors, especially those who came from the United Kingdom, would leave Saskatchewan rather than tolerate the latest amendments to the act.

Dr. Kelly described the latest changes as a "bloodbath" over the heads of the medical profession. He added:

"A very high proportion of the doctors in Saskatchewan are from the United Kingdom and left there to escape the British medical scheme."

APPROVE CHANGES

"They have no deep roots in the province yet and will probably move out."

The amendments approved Saturday by the CCF government empower the administrative medical care commission to act as agent for all beneficiaries of the plan in making payment, settling the rate of payment and taking or fighting court action for medical bills.

Dr. Glenn Sawyer, general secretary of the Ontario Medical Association, said the amendments would amount to "civil conscription of the medical profession."

Health Minister W. G. Davies told the Saskatchewan legislature the amendments "do not infringe on basic rights or the proper practice of the medical profession."

JAKARTA, Indonesia (Reuters)—Russia is stepping up military and economic aid to Indonesia as tension grows in this country's dispute with The Netherlands over West New Guinea, it was disclosed Saturday.

Shipments of war equipment under a military agreement signed at the end of 1960 are believed to be arriving at an ever-faster rate after Indonesian pleas.

A favorite system is to study for eight straight hours before an exam when this is possible, even if it means rising at 1 a.m. to prepare for a 9 o'clock paper.

Other systems are a little more sophisticated.

"You've got to breathe deeply all the time you're writing," says a science student. "Keeps your heart pumping at the right speed, so that you don't get panicky."

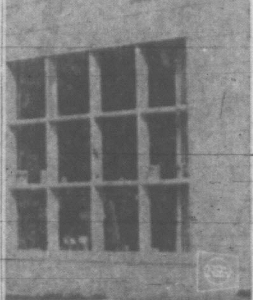

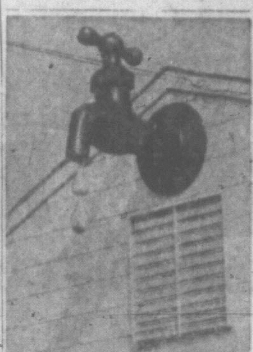

"Take food and chewing gum into the room with you," says another. "You can't smoke in examinations, but there's nothing in the rules to say you can't eat."

"My advice would be steady," commented a professor caustically when asked about the best system for passing exams.

"Study, and read the questions carefully."

"And write concise answers," he added hopefully.

BIG DRIPPER — Plumber in Flourtown, Pa., uses advertising symbol familiar to many of us—the leaky faucet that no washer seems able to stop.

VOTING ON TUESDAY

60% Majority Needed on Marina

Oak Bay ratepayers vote Tuesday to accept or reject a 30-year agreement to provide a modern marina restaurant replacing the 60-year-old boat-house on Beach Drive.

An agreement drawn up by councillors and Oak Bay Marina Ltd., would provide the municipality with a $450,000 establishment, becoming public property at the end of the lease.

There is no expenditure of taxpayers' money involved, but the matter must go to referendum because the lease period is beyond that permitted by the Municipal Act. Permission to extend was given by the legislature.

Top Tories Meet

OTTAWA (CP)—A top-level strategy meeting of Conservative party election campaigners got an hour-long pep talk from Prime Minister Diefenbaker Sunday.

Ballots may be cast between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. in the municipal hall. Transportation will be provided by calling EV 4-9851.

Reeve George Murdoch said Oak Bay stands to profit annually by about $7,500 in property taxes, plus land rental during the life of the agreement, and following amortization will continue to receive rent from the operators.

FAST START

Oak Bay Ratepayers' Association endorsed the proposed development last week after hearing plans described by marina committee chairman Coun. Allan Cox and company managing-director Robert Wright.

If voters approve, construction work—first to replace berthing facilities—will start immediately.

There will be a dining lounge taking full advantage of the marine vista at Turkey Head, a coffee shop, boat rental, repair and sales facilities, screened parking area, water, electric power and laundry services for boatmen, public rest rooms and sea rescue boats on 24-hour alert.

Liz Doesn't Know the Man

LONDON (Reuters)—Elizabeth Taylor was reported Saturday to be contemplating remarriage in the future "but I don't know the man."

The movie star, whose name has been linked romantically with married actor Richard Burton, was quoted by the London Daily Express as saying she was in no hurry to divorce Eddie Fisher, her fourth husband.

"I could not say I will never be married again," she said in an interview in Rome, "because I don't think that would be true. I might some time later, but I don't know the man."

Miss Taylor and Burton are co-starring in Cleopatra, which is being filmed in Rome. She said that after completion of the film she will live at her home at Gstaad, Switzerland, "probably for several months."

Speaking of her 15-month-old adopted German-Jewish daughter, she said: "I want to keep Maria. My children are happy with me and that is really important. What people do not know is that I adopted Maria myself. Not with Eddie, my husband. Just me alone.

"Everyone wants to marry me off. It's a bit early yet."

Burton Threatens

To Quit Cast

ROME (Reuters)—Actor Richard Burton was quoted by a Rome newspaper Saturday as threatening to quit the cast of Cleopatra unless movie company executives call off a publicity campaign involving him with Elizabeth Taylor.

LIONS' COACH PLEASED WITH FIELD CONDITION

COURTENAY—Vancouver Lions head coach Dave Skrien and his two assistants were pleased with the field and facilities of their spring training camp here when they inspected it on the weekend.

The three Lions took two days out for a fishing trip to Boot Lake with Chamber of Commerce president Al Rae and Booster Club chairman Harry Squire Jr.

They were pleased with the condition of the camp. Negotiations for hotel accommodations are the only details still to be worked out prior to their training season.

V.I. ROUNDUP

New Area Seeks Elk Lake Water

SIDNEY—Residents of the John Dean Park area of North Saanich are following the lead of the rest of the Saanich Peninsula in making a bid for a domestic water system.

They will meet April 27 at 8 p.m. in the Farmers' Pavilion, Dominion Experimental Farm, to form an association which in turn will ask to be taken in as part of Sidney Waterworks District.

Area concerned is that bounded by Sidney on the north, John Dean Park on the west, Central Saanich to the south, and the shore to the east. Speaker at the meeting will be Lt. Cmdr. Lon Chaney, MBE, CD (Ret.), who has played a large part in organization of the movement to date.

Residents in the north-eastern portion of the peninsula are making a similar approach to the Sidney district, while those in Deep Cove are working to set up their own water district.

In all cases Elk Lake will be the source of supply.

COURTENAY—A $930,000 school building bylaw was passed here Saturday by a 76 per cent majority.

More than 1,500 Comox Valley residents went to the polls to vote on the referendum, which will provide one junior secondary school in Cumberland and 24 other class and activity rooms throughout the school district.

Only 326 votes were registered against the bylaw, with 1,211 in favor. There were 16 spoiled ballots.

ALBERNI—Rate payers here voted 72 per cent Saturday in favor of a $600,000 sewer bylaw which had been rejected twice before.

The vote, $25-316, with 30 spoiled ballots, represented 61 per cent of those eligible. A 60-per-cent majority was required for passage.

LADYSMITH—Rev. D. S. Lewis of Ladysmith and Chemainus United Church will be moderator for discussion by a panel of teachers of the "new occupational program" tonight at 8.30 at Mount Brenton School.

Panel members will be S. J. Gowland, School District 67 night school director; D. McKay, Chemainus High School principal; A. Hardwick, industrial arts teacher; and Mrs. R. Hindmarch, who will discuss eligibility.

LEAVE WEDNESDAY

Pilgrims Preparing For Trek With Cross

NANAIMO—Annual Pacific Cross Pilgrimage to Victoria will start here Wednesday when marchers leave St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church at 2 p.m.

It will be carried in relays by men of the various parishes along the route, and will end at St. Andrew's Cathedral in Victoria at 10.45 a.m. Easter Sunday.

It will be under sponsorship of the Knights of Columbus Councils of lower Vancouver Island.

The procession, being held for the fourth consecutive year, is the only one of its kind on the west coast, and is undertaken as a public profession of faith.

Only men take part in the actual marching, but women of the parishes along the 70-mile route will assist in arrangements for transportation and refreshments.

In each case the men of one parish will surrender the large wooden cross they will carry to the men of the next parish.

First stop will be at Ladysmith at about 7 p.m. Wednesday. The march will resume Thursday at 8 p.m. when the cross will be carried to Chemainus, arriving at about midnight.

5 A.M. START

On Good Friday men of Chemainus will start at 5 a.m. for the walk to Duncan, and the Duncan pilgrims will leave at 9 a.m. for the next stage to Mill Bay, arriving at about 1 p.m.

Fifth stage of the pilgrimage will start at Mill Bay at 2.30 p.m., and end at the Dutch Latch Inn on the Malahat.

Men of Langford parish will carry the cross to Langford, starting Saturday at 3 p.m.

Victorians will assemble at Langford Easter Sunday at 7.15 a.m. to carry the cross on its final stage.

Fall Fair Fate Decided Tonight At Ladysmith

LADYSMITH—A public meeting to decide whether Ladysmith will have its fall fair this year has been called for tonight at 7.30 in the Lions Den.

The fair has operated in recent years with a minimum of public support and membership of the Ladysmith Agricultural Society has dwindled to such an extent that it cannot continue without help.

Members of the Lions Club have been doing most of the work in connection with the fair simply to keep it going but they have indicated this arrangement can no longer be continued. Ladysmith has had a fall fair for 47 years.

Discussion Group Planned at Duncan

DUNCAN—Plans were made here on the weekend for launching a liberal arts discussion group in the Duncan-Cowichan Bay area under sponsorship of UBC.

Topics to be discussed will be The Ways of Mankind, Religions of the World, and Philosophy in a Mass Age. Information can be obtained from Mrs. V. Abear, Duncan 406L2, or Peter Owen, Cobble Hill 207L3. Enrolment will be limited to 30.

Crash Kills Man At Deas Tunnel

VANCOUVER (CP)—Duncan Hugh McLaren, 41, was killed Sunday when his car crashed into a concrete support on the Deas Island Tunnel throughway.

RCMP said McLaren's car went out of control on a curve, crossed the median and hit the centre support of the overpass.

His wife, Ivy, and Everett and Charlotte Lashuk were injured. McLaren was the father of four.

Headquarters will be in Nanaimo.

Mr. MacInnes was a member of the First Fairfield Cub Pack in Victoria, but earned his King's Scout badge in Duncan and continued his service to scouting in the up-Island city. He has the Medal of Merit, Silver Acorn, and Long Service Medal with three bars.

Woodwynn Tops Sale

A Vancouver Island heifer brought the top price at a purebred beef and commercial fat stock sale at Abbotsford on Saturday.

One of three Aberdeen Angus put on the block by Woodwynn Farm of West Saanich, the 17-month-old female sold to E. A. Watson of Whonnock, B.C., for $660.

The sale, expected to become an annual event, saw more than 50 Angus, Hereford, Shorthorn and Highland cattle from the Fraser Valley and Vancouver Island change hands.

Among other Islanders who shipped to the sale were Alex Turner, Langford, with Aberdeen Angus; Bill Turner, Cordova Bay, Shorthorn; Albert Hull, Langford, Angus.

And among Islanders who were successful bidders were Wes Swan, Sparrow Road, who brought home a Hereford cow and calf, and C. M. Graham, Saanich, two Hereford heifers.

Life Insurance is a good investment

Buy protection from a life insurance company but invest your money elsewhere. This view, held by a number of people, reflects a belief that life insurance is a safe but unprofitable form of investment. But both the opinion and the belief behind it completely ignore the facts. The theoretical advantage of investing elsewhere soon evaporates in the light of Manufacturers Life's low premium deposits, liberal annual dividends and high returns on annuities. The rate of interest credited to policyowners compares more than favourably with net yields on good, reliable stocks and bonds.

Behind this performance is progressive money management practiced by a group of specialists who administer a fund of one billion dollars. They have earned for the company a reputation for investment operations that produce an enviable combination of profit and safety. These men work for you when you invest in a Manufacturers Life policy.

This story is far from complete. There are many additional practical advantages of investing in life insurance. The Man from Manufacturers would welcome the opportunity to give you the complete picture.

SPRING TIME IS FOAL TIME

Spring is "busting out all over" with the appearance of many long-legged babies of the horse world. Two new arrivals in Saanich are shown here. At left is week-old filly and mother "Buckshee" at Mr. and Mrs. Ron Trickett's McTavish Road farm. The Tricketts, both well-known show riders, have great expectations for the little one. She was sired by their registered quarterhorse stallion, "Red Rock Rex." At right is another week-old baby, considerably smaller. The tiny Shetland colt, born at the Cordova Bay farm of Bill Mattick, is backed by his mother, "Rosita." Father is showy Shetland stallion, "Pegasus," who also makes his home at Mattick's. Youngsters are already growing like weeds. (Times Photos by Bill Halkett.)

MONTE ROBERTS

Who says there's no percentage in being in the newspaper business?
Hah. You should see a letter in the morning mail. I have been invited to be a judge.
Yup.
In a beauty contest.
Wow!
A BATHING beauty contest.
Wow-Wow-Wow-Wow!
This old dad is getting pretty old, but . . .
Although judging a bathing beauty contest might, at that, be the bickering of the end.
This is a risk I will take, and I have already fired off a telegram of acceptance.
Now, let me have a closer look at the letter which invited me to be a judge for this contest.
This letter is from D. B. Loyd, and the contest is sponsored by the Rotary Club of the Alberni. I presume this club represents Alberni both Port and starboard.
Mr. Loyd asks me to consent to be one of five judges, and to look at the enclosed sheet of photographs of the entries.
Photographs of the entries!
Zingo! Chee! Where's that enclosed sheet? Ah, here it is.
What? What? What? These are lovely photos of lovely people but . . .
Oh, now I know what happened.
I read the letter too quickly the first time.
This isn't a BATHING beauty contest.
It's a BABY beauty contest.
Ah, well, it's more in this old dad's line, and he'll be happy to be a judge.

MANOEUVRING DENIED

Gelling Rebuff Sparks Tory Row

A pre-election row flared within the Progressive Conservative Party today over rejection of former school board chairman W. C. Gelling as a candidate for Victoria's seat in Parliament.

Some local Tories claim the move was to ensure re-election of present MP A. DeB. McPhillips.

Local executive president P. J. Sinnott denied this.

Mr. Gelling's name is not allowed to stand for the Victoria nomination at a convention April 26.

Mr. Sinnott said Mr. Gelling could not run because he had not been a party member long enough.

30 DAYS BEFORE

He joined April 6, and the local constitution, approved two years ago, says a candidate must be a member of the party at least 30 days before the nominating convention.

Mr. Gelling said he couldn't join earlier because his school board membership ruled out political activity.

He said nobody knew what the date was until March 27—less than a month beforehand. "I find it difficult to reconcile this practice with accepted democratic principles in conducting public affairs," he said.

CALLS FOR REVIEW

"It is my understanding that responsible citizens are urged to come forward in political life whenever they feel they are in a position to make an offer of public service."

He called for a review of the rules by a special meeting of the local association.

Mr. Sinnott said Mr. Gelling should have made his request earlier.

"The object of the rules is to keep out people who come in at the last minute and who have never taken any interest in Conservative politics before."

'REASONABLE' TIME

The time limit is "reasonable," he said.

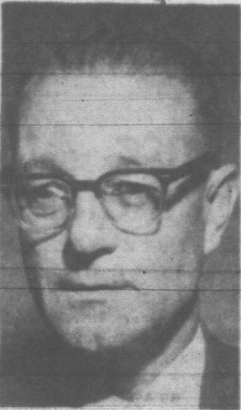

"Our association has got to adhere to the rules. There will be no obstacles placed in the way of any candidate who is qualified."

"I can see no valid objection to the convention setup as it exists. It is very fair and democratic."

He said the disqualification was to ensure re-election of Mr. McPhillips.

"That is not so. There is no partisanship," he said.

Mr. Gelling complained there had been no advance notice nor any Tory meeting before March 27 to announce the convention date and that membership and nominations were closed.

Mr. Sinnott said Mr. Gelling's statement was "quite incorrect."

He said the last Tory meeting was the annual one held at the end of last year.

Mr. Gelling said he would bow to the rules, and would not attend the nominating convention, but that he would welcome the support of any Conservatives who agreed they were unfair.

Garbageman Drives Fire Away

A garbage man's life does have its exciting moments.

Oak Bay truck driver Vic Van-Hoeke played the hero in a spectacular dash from City Hall to the waterfront as he wheeled his flaming garbage van through traffic at 11:30 a.m. today to get away from downtown crowds.

Fire broke out beneath the smoking truck as he pulled up to a stop light at Pandora and Douglas.

City clerk Frank Hunter rushed from his office, whistled and shouted to pedestrians on the corner:

"Fire!"

Flames were shooting out from underneath the van, perilously close to the fuel tank.

Van-Hoeke jumped out, had a look and leaped back in, leaning on the horn as he gunned the vehicle toward the garbage wharf.

Wharf tenders doused the fire without difficulty, limiting the damage to a box slung under the chassis where the garbage crew's rainwear was kept.

Tripled Power Needed by U.S.

Business Tax Boost May Aid Lodging Plan

Mayor, Dowell Favors Study

City council may consider raising this year's business tax by a minute amount if intermunicipal committee maintains the outside municipalities' refusal to give financial assistance to Expo-Lodging here.

The possibility gained ground today following the Centennial-Century 21 reservations centre's desperate plea for $2,500 to keep it going for co-ordinating the accommodation needs of this summer's bumper tourist crop.

Council last week indicated it may foot the bill itself if the intermunicipal committee rejects the request.

DOWELL AGAINST

"I'm against the general taxpayer making up the amount if the other municipalities refuse," said finance committee chairman Ald. Arthur Dowell.

"The people who benefit should be the ones to pay, and I think the hotel and motel group already has contributed its share of the cost."

Both Ald. Dowell and Mayor R. B. Wilson said a study should be made of the business tax before any grant was made from general revenue.

ONE YEAR ONLY

This year's business tax would have to be raised only from 6.25 to 6.3 per cent to cover the grant, it was believed.

It was contended that the slight increase could be justified for this year alone because the extraordinary tourist flow is expected to have an impact on the whole business community and not just the tourist industry.

MIGHTY MARS

'Philippina' Enters Water At Pat Bay

Philippine Mars, one of the three largest flying boats in the world (the other two are her sisters Caroline Mars and Hawaii Mars), took to the water at Patricia Bay today for testing prior to becoming the world's biggest water bomber.

The big aircraft is owned by Forest Industries Flying Tankers Ltd., and in the past few months has been reconditioned and fitted to carry up to 7,000 gallons of water for dumping on forest fires.

Work has been done by Fairley Aviation at its Patricia Bay Airport plant, and with FIFT staff assisting.

Water and taxiing tests were set for this afternoon, but it was not known whether flights tests would be made today. It is understood the plane will undergo exhaustive testing here before being moved to its Spruce Lake base later in the week.

Resplendent in new red and white paint job, the massive plane was towed across the airport by truck, then lowered down the marine ramp to the water, where beaching gear was removed.

FIFT, the owner of the aircraft, is the property of four large B.C. logging and timber firms, all of whose lands are within 75 minutes flying time from Spruce Lake.

Faulty Chimney Blamed In Fatal Fire

View Royal fire chief Al Beasley and Colwood RCMP Sgt. R. E. Brown said Saturday a fire which took the life of a nine-month-old boy early Friday was caused by a faulty chimney.

Killed in the blaze was Clement, the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Lodewyk Wertheim-Aymes, 215 Helmcken.

The investigation revealed mortar had crumbled away between bricks near the structure's wooden wall.

Flames from the oil furnace apparently burned through the weak spot and set the wall alight.

'Exploit Every Possible Source'

The United States will need more than three times as much electrical power in 1980 as it did in 1961, Commissioner Howard Morgan of the Washington Federal Power Commission said here today.

To meet these "towering demands," the U.S. will have to exploit every possible source of power production, Mr. Morgan told the 22nd annual meeting of the Northwest Public Power Association opening at the Empress Hotel today.

He added that the great expanse of Canada's undeveloped hydro-potential—especially along the upper Columbia, the Fraser and Peace Rivers—must be viewed in the light of the "giant power potential of the Pacific Northwest."

Earlier, Mayor R. B. Wilson told the 300 U.S. delegates: "I suspect you have come up here to find out what is going on in our own field of power development. If you find out, please let us know."

Mr. Morgan estimated that the population of the United States will reach 268,000,000 by 1980—an increase of 84,000,000 over the current figure of 184,000,000.

He referred thus to Dr. H. L. Kennel, chairman of the B.C. Power Commission, who was to speak this afternoon, and Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of the government-owned B.C. Electric, who will speak Tuesday.

He added that the Peace River project alone could ultimately generate as much as 6,000,000 kilowatts.

"Truly our North Pacific country is the hydro-power centre of gravity of North America."

An Expenditure of $100 Billion

"This means that we will require about 3,000 billion kilowatt-hours of electricity to maintain the dynamism of the U.S. in 1980, compared with the 880 billion kilowatt-hours required in 1961."

"In plant, it means we will need almost 600,000,000 kilowatts of generating capacity in 1980, or a little over three times the nearly 200,000 kilowatt capacity we had in 1961."

"To meet these fantastic demands we must exploit to the fullest degree all the recent technological breakthroughs we have been fortunate enough to achieve in recent years."

It was suggested the eventual creation of a "giant Pacific rim power system" extending from northern Alaska to southern California. He added: "I am confident that the benefits of such a system—not confined to one country or to one province or state, but to the entire western segment of this continent—will become increasingly and irresistibly clear."

"In any event, whatever the ultimate form this giant network may take, I am convinced that the need for a truly giant power plan cannot be postponed or ignored any longer."

"With it, I am confident that the continued dynamic growth of our neighboring and inter-dependent countries is assured."

Welcoming delegates and their wives to Victoria, Mayor Wilson noted that the Northwest Public Power Association is holding its first annual meeting outside the United States.

Dan Jolly, president of the association, responded: "If His Worship could stay with us longer, we might have some answers for him concerning B.C. power development."

Ivan L. Bateman, president of the American Public Power Association, Washington, D.C., and chief electrical engineer of the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power, said:

"One of the great opportunities now before the public agencies of the Pacific Coast is the huge intertie proposed to inter-connect the power systems of the northwest and the southwest."

"The benefits of this intertie to the people of both regions would be enormous. I can assure you that we in California respect your desire in the northwest to protect your low-cost power supplies."

City Asked to Save 'Follow the Birds'

A plea was made to city council today to rescue the famous "Follow the Birds to Victoria" slogan from deliberate obscurity.

Y. P. O. Vesey, 1811 Crescent Rd., blamed publicity bureau head William Hawkins for throwing the 40-year-old slogan into the shadows.

Either City Hall should save the old slogan for Victoria or should promote it as a provincial slogan, he contended.

'EQUAL BILLING'

Mr. Vesey charged that Mr. Hawkins was pushing his pet "Canada's Treasure Island" slogan despite assurances he gave last year to an outraged Junior Chamber of Commerce that the two slogans would receive equal billing.

He said that Mr. Hawkins' slogan was given prominent display on the front pages of all tourist literature published by the bureau while "Follow the Birds" was relegated to a small place on back pages and in some cases did not even appear.

City council, if it wanted to keep Island slogan in deference to up-Island communities that now help pay the bureau's expenses, should at least pay the extra cost and have special Victoria pamphlets printed featuring the traditional slogan, he said.

Guided by members of the Victoria society, they toured Thetis Park, Mill Hill and the Sooke area.

After lunch Sunday they visited Thomas S. Francis Park where a walk on the nature trails and a few moments in Nature House were enjoyed.

The group showed special interest in the abundance of Calypsoes in full bloom.

Island Jaycees Condemn B.C. Electric Takeover

Vancouver Island Jaycees have unanimously endorsed a resolution condemning the B.C. government takeover of the B.C. Electric Co.

At an Island district meeting in Powell River Sunday, 140 representatives of seven clubs voted on the censure motion which had been previously passed by the Victoria Junior Chamber.

The resolution termed the expropriation "a dangerous infringement of well established rights . . . which deliberately attempts to place (the government's) action above and outside the usual democratic processes of the courts."

New district president, elected at the meeting, is Hoarse Norwath of Duncan. He succeeded Brian Small of Victoria.

Jaycees present represented chambers in Victoria, Duncan, Nanaimo, Courtenay, Port Alberni, Campbell River and Powell River.

Old Vic Players Best in Festival

The Old Vic Players' production of Riders to the Sea has been chosen to represent Southern Vancouver Island at the provincial drama festival in Dawson Creek May 28 to June 2.

Riders to the Sea was named the best production at the Southern Vancouver Island Festival held at Oak Bay Junior High School Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Adjudicator Anne Mossman described the winner as "quite a theatrical experience—a slice out of pure Irish life."

She congratulated the entire cast on a fine performance.

BEST ACTRESS
The Old Vic Players, a city group, also captured the best actress award—it went to Moira McCall.

Best actor was John Poulton of St. Matthias Little Theatre in the Browning Version. Frank Hunter of the same production was named best supporting actor.

Remaining two awards were taken by Harlequinade produced by St. Luke's Players. It provided the best supporting actress, Paddy Hayward, and was best visual production.

Honorable mentions went to Barbara Grant, Alec Hutchins, Betty Jean Pierre, Dorothea House, Susan Atkinson and Elizabeth Forth.

22 YEARS OF SILENCE

'Dead' Son's Letter Ends Mother's Ritual

NICASTRO, Italy (AP)—Every day for 22 years Mrs. Anna Rocca had placed flowers on the local tomb of the Unknown Soldier in memory of her soldier son.

Cesare Rocca went off to war in 1936 as a member of Benito Mussolini's black shirt troops in Ethiopia. His last letter was written in June 1940, before the battle of Debra Zit. After the war ended, the defence ministry ruled him lost.

But during the weekend a letter arrived from Ethiopia. It was from Cesare to his brother, Vincenzo.

Now 52, Cesare said he had married an Ethiopian woman and has two sons. He gave no explanation for his long silence but said he planned to come home soon to see his mother.

Make Cakes Light, Fluffy —Not Flat Like a Pancake

By PENNY SAVER

There's a new item on the market. It's designed to eliminate baking failures that come about through haphazard measurement of shortening.

I really shouldn't say item, but items, because one package contains three measuring scales for butter and margarine. Scales are made of a light durable plastic, with measurements marked on with an ink that won't wash or wear off.

The one pound butter measurement scale has a cup scale one side, indicating 20 standard measurements up to two cups. On the other side is a table indicating teaspoon measurements up to two cups.

Ten measurements up to one cup are indicated on the half-pound block, margarine scale and up to one in table spoons. On the quarter pound block margarine scale there are three, measurements to a cup and tablespoon measurements up to a half cup.

This may all sound quite confusing to you, but if you were to see them, you would realize their worth. Price for a set is only 69 cents.

Something that is quite isolated from baking, but that can cause havoc in any household is painting.

Now, for small items that have to be painted there's a new spray paint on the market that will make your task easier and will eliminate a lot of mess.

Spray paints are particularly good for children's toys, and outdoor furniture.

Gold and silver colors are ideal for picture frames or retouching appliances. Silver could also be used for spraying greenery for special occasions.

Just think, no brushes necessary, you simply press a button and spray.

A 16-ounce can of spray sells for $1.89 and can be purchased in a choice of 16 colors.

Want to know where to find these items? Don't hesitate to call me, I'll be glad to tell you.

Penny, EV 2-3131.

CHARLES MONTAIGNE

Bound for all the bright spots on your summer horizon, this is the wonderful kind of dress you can call on for countless occasions—beautifully understated for the office, smart and simple for lunch, shopping or sightseeing, easy to step into with refreshing good looks for a last-minute social gathering. Shaped with semi-fitted ease, Charles Montaigne's gently flared princess model has an artful way of turning a figure into a slim column. In front, folded bands of contrast are stitched into long seams that angle sharply below the shoulders to mark a subtle split yoke. Two shades of linen or cotton, bold and pale, or a printed silk or rayon contrasted with a solid color are our favorite warm weather suggestions for this dress. Later, you might make it in lightweight wool, faille or silk crepe with bands of matching satin or velvet. From these corresponding body measurements select the size best for you. Our sizing is comparable to that used for better ready-to-wear.

Up for a Vote

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a young how much is it this time? elderly parent. Shame on divorce with three children. Don't people realize that I sell you!

A very lonely professional man lives across the street from me. He is married to a woman who stays on drugs most of the time. We have been seeing each other almost every night. He says his wife is an addict and it's his own free will and it's his own fault. People resent being a nightmare living with her. Sometimes she doesn't comb her hair for days. He's lost all respect for her. He wants to marry me. He deserves a full life and so do I. We decided to let the majority of your readers vote on what we should do.

TICKETS TO SELL
DEAR TICKETS: Do your self a favor and retire from the ticket sales force for a while. People resent being a person for half a dozen "worthy causes." If this is the way you can best serve your organizations, select one "cause" and stick with it.

"GOLDIE LOCKS.
DEAR GOLDIE: If any of my readers have had experience living with an addict or an alcoholic, I welcome their letters. I think you should be aware that no one is an addict "of his own free will." He is a slave to the habit, and helpless against the urge. It takes patience, understanding and, frequently, medical help, to overcome addictions. A man of character would stick with his wife and try to help her.

DEAR ABBY: I am a man who is 45 years old. I am thinking about marrying the girl who keeps house for me, but she is only 15. Do you think I am crazy to think of marrying a girl when I am three times older than she is?

WILEY.
DEAR WILEY: Wait another fifteen years. When she is 30 and you are 60, you will be only twice as old as she is.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please say something in defense of we women who always seem to get in on the ticket-selling part of club work? I personally have been stuck with tickets to sell for my church group, Scouts, Shrine doings—just name it. When my friends see me coming, they say, "Well, Betty,

THE BETTER HALF

By Bob Barnes

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

So You're Young and Cute . . .
You're Aging Every Minute

The average woman's figure begins to deteriorate early in life, although the results of neglect may not be apparent until years later.

Just as aging in the face happens gradually, line by line, so does the change in the figure occur. Even if she was interested in sports as a girl, the average woman tends to drop them after marriage, or does not indulge in them regularly, and she does not replace this loss with special exercises which she could take at home.

The young bride is fascinated with her new home and household duties, and she has no reason to worry much about her figure. She is exceedingly anxious to show her husband what a good cook she is, to please him with especially tempting meals. Anyway, there is not usually much money for golf and golf equipment, or for evenings of dancing.

Then the first baby arrives. The woman is even more enthralled with her home, she is busier and tied more closely to her own "four walls." She also has a few stretched abdominal muscles and may have gained unnecessary weight during her pregnancy.

She may not recondition between pregnancies, and soon finds that life has somehow sneaked up on her with a matronly figure. She is busy and has little time for herself, and may allow this situation to continue.

It is too bad that young women often do not realize what is happening to them when it is too late. From middle age on it takes more self-discipline and more effort to keep or regain that girlish figure, but it is entirely possible.

Overweight can be lost, greatly benefiting health, and exercise can improve lack of tone and measurements.

The fact that aging happens day by day and month by month and year by year makes it possible to fight it in the same way—day by day and month by month and year by year with a daily routine of correct eating, daily skin care and daily exercise.

If you would like to have my leaflet No. 19 "Essential Daily Routine for Beauty and Health" (the exercise is planned to hit the spots in which overweight harasses women), send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Corry-Spriggs Vows Exchanged on Saturday

The gown featured a basque bodice with scalloped sweetheart neckline and a full skirt with chapel train. A silk illusion veil misted from a sparkling tiara of iridescent sequins. Only jewelry worn by the bride was culture pearl earrings, gift of the groom. She carried cascade bouquet of pink Rapture roses and lily of the valley.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jack R. Corry, 908 Arundel Drive and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Spriggs, 928-15-land Road. The wedding took place in St. Mary's Anglican Church with Rev. Hywel J. Jones officiating. Miss Corry was given in marriage by her father.

Guest pews were marked with white roses and lily of the valley and large baskets of white and pink gladioli flanked the altar.

Matron of honor, Mrs. J. Sommerville and bridesmaids, Suzanne McElmoyle and Sharon Holdridge wore identical gowns of Copen blue crystal-lette with accessories en tone and tiaras of white carnations and ice blue leaves. White carnations and white hyacinths were in their bouquets.

Gordon Spriggs, brother of the groom, was best man and ushering guests to their pews were Peter Corry, brother of the bride, and John Sommerville.

A reception following the wedding was held in Sir William Wallace room at Holyrood House where pink roses in silver vases, white candles in holders and tipped rosebuds in tulip decorated the brides' table with a three-tiered cake.

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

PECULIAR HOW little things sometimes disturb one, isn't it?

Well I remember as a young man haunting a tobaccoist's shelves for something new in the way of pipe tobacco. Suddenly I came upon an imported brand that bore the inscription "as smoked by Prime Minister."

That was enough for me. I bought it. The British P.M. in question was an idol of mine, he having just handled a ticklish situation with admirable skill.

But one puff and—Whoosh! It was perfumed with violets or something equally obnoxious to one who detests aromatic tobaccos of any type. You know I never cared too much for him after that, and doubtless because of my youth, was wont to wonder if he had handled the problem with such skill after all.

I mention that above to show you that the years since, to my great regret, have done little to mould me into a more understanding and tolerant man. It happened while viewing NBC-CBC-TV's hour-long program, "American Landscape," last Wednesday night, a show I particularly wished to see because one of my favorite authors, MacKinnon Kantor, was to be on hand.

On who can forget that firm pen, those sonorous passages in "The Voice of Bugle Ann" or "The Romance of Rosy Ridge," or the depth and sheer power in "Andersonville," that won him a Pulitzer? Perhaps he would recite some apropos sequences or even read from his own writings.

But no, MacKinnon sang! He sang rollickingly, rustically and, sometimes, rustily. Not that his voice was so bad but compared to his writing scarcely of befitting majesty.

To be sure, I'll go on reading him but with a certain reserve, always fearsome that his TV image will come singing through the pages to spoil the story. I wish I had viewed something else instead.

WORTHWHILE TV: Watching President Kennedy's face on the CBC-TV news as he ticked off U.S. steel tycoons for upping prices—an intimate view of a sincerely angry man... Target: Corruptors/ Friday night drama on ABC-TV that dealt with the plight of the migrant farm worker and feeling that sometimes fiction carries a greater impact than straight documentary. Keenan Wynn was excellent... Bob Newhart's skit about movies being made with built-in commercials for later showings on TV was a side-splitter!

DIVORCES, ILLEGITIMACIES UP

Births, Marriages, Deaths At Low Point During 1960

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's birth rate in 1960 declined to its lowest point since 1945. Its marriage rate fell to its lowest mark since 1935, and its death rate reached the lowest figure on record.

Up were divorces and illegitimate births.

The 1960 vital statistics report, issued last week by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, shows that 478,551 infants were born alive in Canada during that year for a national birth rate of 26.9 per 1,000 population. The 1959 figure was 27.5.

But despite the drop, Canada remained in sixth position among countries of the world—well ahead of the 23.9 rate in the United States and Russia's 25.0, and slightly higher than India's 26.3.

Venezuela heads the list with a rate of 46.9. There is a wide gap between Chile's fifth place 35.4 and Canada's next-ranking 26.9. Nearly a third of Canadian births in 1960 occurred in Ontario, almost 29 per cent were in Quebec, and British Columbia reported eight per cent. Together the three provinces contributed more than 70 per cent of the year's babies.

Out of every 100 mothers, seven were under 20 years old and 36 were under 25. The average weight of all male babies was seven pounds, 7½ ounces. Girls were four ounces lighter.

Of Canada's 478,551, births, 20, 413 were illegitimate. This 4.3 percentage equals the 1948 figure, the highest on record. The 1921-25 average was 2.2 per cent.

The 130,338 marriages during the year compared with 132,474 in 1959 and the rate per 1,000 population fell to 7.3 from 7.6. The highest rate, 10.9, was in 1946.

The average age of brides in 1960 was 24.7 years, down slightly from 24.8 in 1959. The 1921 average was 25.5.

Their husbands averaged 27.7 years, unchanged from 1959 but down 2.2 years from 1921—the earliest records available.

A total of 6,980 couples were granted divorces during the year. This rate of 39.2 per 100,000 population compares with the 1959 figure of 37.5. The highest rate on record was in 1947 when the figure reached 65.4. The average rate between 1921 and 1925 was 0.6.

Canada's death rate of 7.8 per 1,000 population was down from 8.0 in 1959 and it compared with a 1921-25 average of 11.3. Only Japan with 7.5 and the Netherlands and Russia, both with 7.6 were lower. Of the 32 countries listed, Ceylon had the highest rate at 9.1. The United States and Britain were both higher than that.

Tuberculosis, which claimed 6,000 lives 20 years ago, caused only 823 deaths in 1960. Accidental deaths also dropped slightly to 9,402 from 9,439 in 1959.

The infant death rate in 1960 was 27 out of every 1,000 births. The 1921-25 average was 99.

DIARY YIELDS SECRET

Raleigh Cheated On Jealous Bess

LONDON (AP)—An old diary hidden for three centuries discloses that Sir Walter Raleigh fell from the favor of Good Queen Bess because he got a girl into trouble.

That was the beginning of the end for Raleigh, the supreme courtier and adventurer of his day.

The diary makes it clear he was forced into a secret marriage that led to his disgrace and, eventually, to a rendezvous with the executioner's axe.

Dr. A. L. Rowse, of Oxford University, pulled off a scholarly scoop in a book disclosing the contents of the diary, found in a storeroom at Canterbury Cathedral.

Historians had been unaware that Raleigh fathered a child, although his secret marriage was well known.

CHILD DIED

The girl he had to wed was Bess Throckmorton, maid of honor to Queen Elizabeth I. Their child, a boy, is believed to have died in infancy.

The 370-year-old diary was written by Arthur Throckmorton, brother of Raleigh's bride. It paints a brilliant picture of courtly intrigue when Raleigh, at 37, was at the peak of his career.

He had led ships against the Spaniards and troops against the Irish. His privateering ventures brought money to the government.

With his handsome face and black curls, he was a favorite of the "virgin queen", a jealous woman then 53.

It was in 1592 that Raleigh committed his fatal mistake. Young Bess Throckmorton was seduced behind an apple tree, so legend has it, and Raleigh married her in secret after she became pregnant. Next spring she gave birth to the child.

Raleigh, afraid of the queen's reaction, was keeping a safe distance from the birthplace.

But he had powerful rivals in the court—notably the Earl of Essex and Sir Robert Cecil, the queen's adviser. They made sure the gossip reached her ears.

Raleigh and the girl were clapped into dungeons. He was freed after five weeks but his chance of power had gone and the road led downhill. Bess Throckmorton was held four months.

Raleigh was condemned by James I after the queen's death and was beheaded in 1618.

SOLUTION MONDAY

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

HOLLYWOOD — Jimmy Durante's enjerrin' foddor hood. "Cecilia," the kid's name is! And do you know Oil, the nurse gets mad at me, just for nuttin'?" crowed the Schnozz the other day in the MGM commissary.

"For nuttin'!" he reiterated. "Just because every day I give a little pull on the baby's nose!"

Jimmy permitted his loud laugh to ripple through the luncheon crowd. Adopted Cecilia may become the pride of his later years. But his wife, the former Margie Little, is giving him a hard time caring for her. So Jimmy insists here on the set of Joe Pasternak's production of "Jumbo."

"I hadda run all over town findin' the right baby erl," he exploded. "And findin' some baby book! I wanta rest and smoke my cigar afterward but the Missus says, 'Oh, no, not around duh baby, yuh can't smoke!'"

"On the level, I gotta go down to muh other house to get away from the disciplun. And when I'm takin' off, my wife says, 'Not so loud! Yuh slamm'n the door!'"

ALWAYS WRONG

Everything he does seems to be wrong, Jimmy says. "I bring the wrong baby powder. What the hell difference what kinda powder you bring? Or I sing the wrong kinda lullaby. What's wrong with a nice lullaby like 'Go on Home, Your Mother's Calling, Your Father Fell Offa the Garbage Wagon.'"

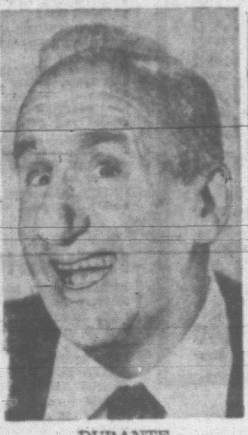

"Did you have trouble findin' a baby?" I asked Jimmy. "Trouble! My missus had everybody lookin'. She was Doris Day, Martha Raye and a tall, handsome actor whom Jimmy calls "Steve Bird" (better known, however, as Stephen Boyd) get fairly regular reports. They, too, are enjerrin' the circus picture, in which Jimmy plays a circus owner "Pop" Wonder.

Somewhere in the script should be the dialogue. "You go to see a circus, what do you see? Uh elephant! Who want to see uh elephant? Only an under elephant!"

Jimmy, who was in "Jumbo" at the old Hippodrome about 27 years ago, thinks that dialogue was also in it. That might make people think Jimmy's old but he's got proof to the contrary.

"YOUNG AT HEART"

When the adoption came up in court, Jimmy's age was mentioned, and a local judge conceded that Jimmy was beyond the usual age for adoptin' fathers.

"But I heard Durante sing 'Young at Heart' and I believe Durante is young at heart," the judge said—and so now they have the baby who's something like 176 months old.

"And every day her nose gets an inch longer!" Jimmy boasts.

"Do you burp the baby?" I asked him.

"Nah! Dey won't let me!" howled Jimmy. "My missus says my shoulder ain't clean enough, or somethin'."

Orders Son's Arrest

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Saud of Saudi Arabia has ordered the arrest of one of his sons for running into two persons with his automobile, Mecca radio announced. The broadcast said young Prince Fawaz ran down the two in the main street of Riyadh, Saudi Arabian capital, and would stand trial as an ordinary citizen. One of the injured suffered a broken leg. The other was severely bruised.

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions to select to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 25-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Dover Hardy, age 12 of Beards Fork, W. Va., for his question:

How Does Photographic Film Work?

The magic of photography is based on a simple trick of chemistry. Certain chemicals are sensitive to light and we have tamed them to take pictures. We know of certain dyes that are sensitive to light—a pair of blue jeans, for example, may fade after days in the sun. The light-sensitive chemicals used to make film are far more dramatic than these everyday dyes. But they, too, change when exposed to the light.

The magic chemical used on a strip of film is usually silver bromide. It is made of molecules which in turn are made from atoms of silver and bromine. If this chemical is kept in the dark, its molecules remain locked in tiny units. But it is highly sensitive to white light, to sunlight or the beam of an ordinary lamp. When a beam of white light strikes the light-sensitive chemical silver bromide, some of its energy is used to unlock the tiny molecules. They become separate atoms of silver and bromine. This is the chemical trick used to take a picture on film. The rest of the operation is the taming of this light-sensitive chemical. It must be put where we want it, protected until we need it and then fixed to give us a permanent record of the scenery.

The roll of film is a strip of clear plastic, firm but not too firm. One side is coated with gelatin teeming with molecules of silver bromide. The roll is wound tight and sealed from the light. It is made to unwind on a pair of spools inside the camera. When you turn the knob which controls the spools just so far, a sheet of film, coated with silver bromide is facing the lens. While the lens is covered, the film waits safely inside the dark camera.

Shutter Admits Light

When you press the picture button, the shutter moves back from the lens and, for a fraction of a second, in streams the light. It carries an image of scenery with its light patches and dark patches and this patchwork image falls upon the silver bromide. Where the light is strong, many of the molecules split into atoms of silver and bromine. Where the light is weaker, fewer of the molecules are split.

In a flash while the shutter opens and shuts, the film captures a code picture of the scenery outside. The exposed film is unrolled in a dark room and washed in chemicals. The picture is developed and the loose silver atoms are fixed firmly in the gelatin. The loose atoms of bromine and the whole molecules of silver bromide are washed away, leaving light patches of clear gelatin to show the dark areas of the picture. This is the film negative, light where it should be dark and dark where it should be light. Similar chemicals are used to transfer the negative to print paper, which shows the light and dark areas in their proper places.

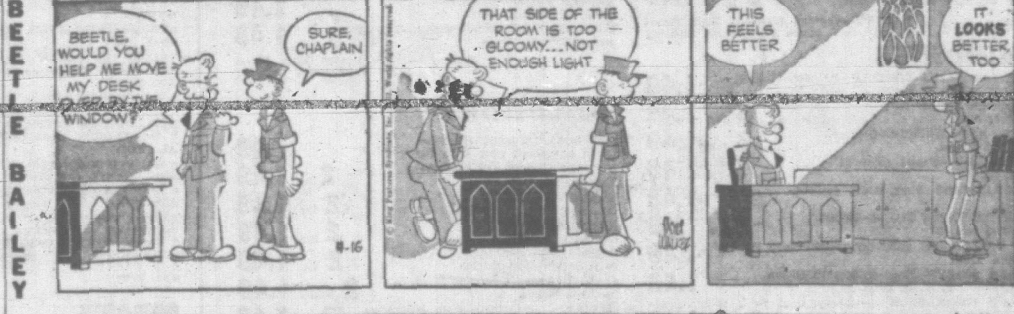

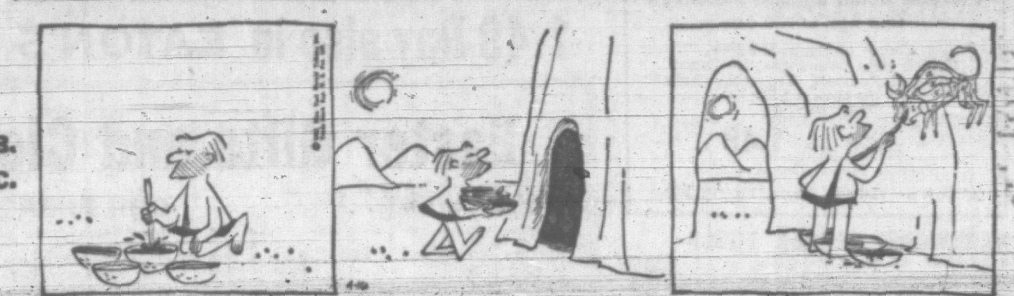

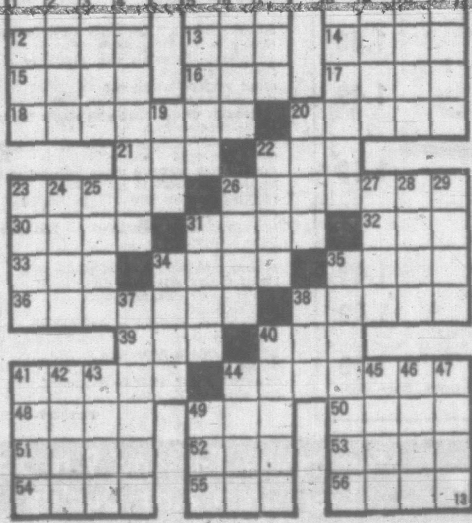

The sensitive chemicals on the white print paper react slower than those on the film. The negative is placed flat on the paper and exposed to the light. The dark areas on the negative keep out the light and the paper below remains white. The clear areas on the negative let through the light and the print paper turns dark. The true picture forms on the print. It is then washed in chemicals to stop further change and the photograph is permanently fixed.

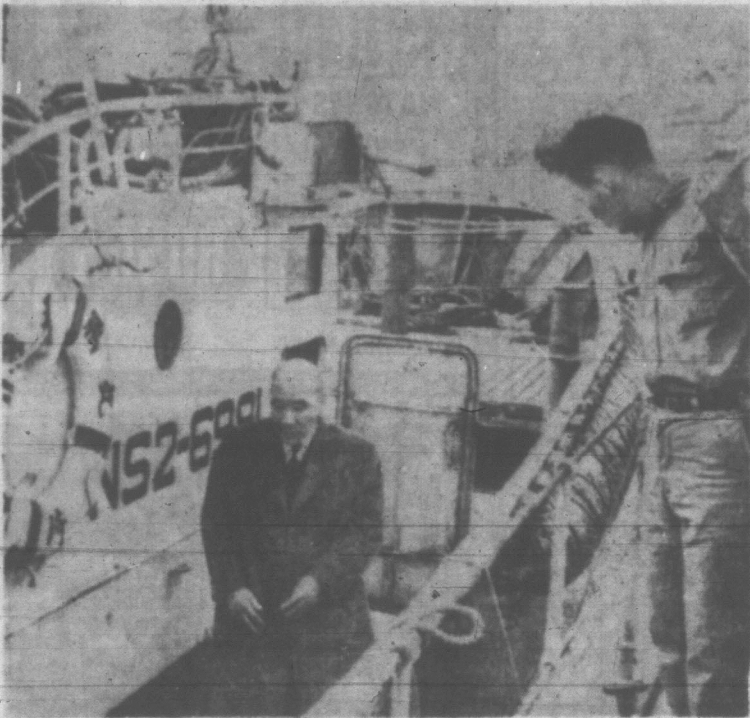

DIEF AGREES BAN MUST BE POLICED

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker Saturday endorsed the Western view that Russia's word cannot be trusted in a nuclear test ban without international control and inspection. "Any unpoliced test ban treaty would be dangerous to the survival of the Western world," he said. "One has but to read the record of Russia's broken promises since 1945 to realize that undertakings can be easily entered into."

Talks Open To Ease Berlin Crisis

Times News Service

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Dean Rusk met with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin today to push a new U.S. plan for stronger guarantees of Allied access to West Berlin.

Their conference, possibly the first of a new round of U.S.-Soviet discussions on the city. One of the issues to be decided today was whether more talks would follow.

The access plan was described as a key requirement before Rusk unveils to the Russians broader proposals for lowering tension in the Berlin area.

These involve increased participation of communist East Germans in day-to-day operations in the area. But the State Department denounced as "wholly inaccurate" one report that the United States had proposed a 3,500-man reduction in the western garrison in Berlin as part of a settlement plan.

Officials claimed Rusk now had general Allied agreement on a more comprehensive plan, which involves a NATO non-aggression pledge, and a Soviet-American exchange of pledges not to give nuclear weapons to other countries.

The secretary, however, did not plan to give Dobrynin any written proposals at this first session.

Rusk entered the conference handicapped by Allied bickering over how far to go in the effort to win Soviet agreement on a tension-easing settlement.

U.K. 'PEACE CORPS' FOR NEW YORK SLUMS

LONDON (AP)—Sixteen young Britons are going to New York this summer to do "peace corps" work among the tenements of Manhattan's lower East Side.

With American volunteers, they aim to keep children out of trouble during school vacation in an area where teenage gang war is frequent.

The Britons—known as the Clayton Volunteers—include five girls. They pay as much of their fares as they can. The rest comes from charity funds.

Boats Seized Off Alaska

KODIAK, Alaska (AP)—Two Japanese fishing boats have been seized and the captains of three Japanese fishing vessels charged in Alaska Superior Court with poaching in Alaska waters.

The three captives were to be arraigned today.

The move by Alaska state officials climaxes years of disension over fishing by the Japanese in waters claimed by Alaska.

The seizure of Japanese fishing fleet vessels began Saturday night when Capt. E. L. Mayfield of the Alaska state police boarded the 65-foot herring catcher Ohtori Maru No. 5 at the mouth of Ugank Bay in Shelikof Strait.

The Ohtori Maru's skipper, Higashimura Tadae was charged with fishing commercially without a licence and without having registered his gear or boat. The Ohtori Maru was escorted to Kodiak by the Alaska state fish and game department vessel Teal and held in lieu of $25,000 bond.

BOARD SECOND BOAT

A second boat, the Socha Maru No. 7, was boarded in Shelikof Strait Sunday night and escorted to Kodiak by Alaska fish and game department vessel Widgeon.

The Socha Maru's skipper, Abe Tadashi, was charged with violating Alaska's inland waters.

The two seized boats were part of a fleet of five accompanied by a 5,000-ton mother ship, the Banshu Maru which has 123 people aboard. Alaska officials claim the Japanese have been taking herring in Shelikof Strait for about two weeks.

The Banshu Maru's captain, Mongo M. Hanasacki, also was charged with fishing commercially without having notified the state.

NO COMMENT

In Washington officials said today the question of Japanese fishing operations in waters claimed by Alaska is in the process of being resolved. Until the U.S. determines whether the waters are U.S. territory, officials would not comment on the weekend incidents.

In Tokyo, a spokesman for the Taiyo Fisheries Co., which owns the vessels, said, "we have ordered the fleet to operate at least five miles off the coast of the United States, two miles outside the accepted territorial water boundary. We are confident no violation is involved."

Boosts Assured B.C. Pensioners

The B.C. government is ensuring that all pensioners get $10 increases in line with new Ottawa grants.

It is boosting the maximum for old-age assistance so that all recipients can get the full advantage of the $10 plus existing supplementary allowance paid by B.C.

An agreement covering increases for the blind and disabled has already been signed and mailed to Ottawa for federal signatures.

RETROACTIVE It will be retroactive to April 1.

Premier Bennett's budget allowed $2,000,000 to pay for the pensions boosts, but no confirmation or details of the deal had been made until government officials confirmed it today.

First move, already taken, was to boost the maximum pension allowed for pensioners over 70 eligible for old age assistance.

The old age pension was $55 from Ottawa plus a special supplementary allowance of up to $24 from B.C. The maximum paid was $79.

The new federal pension is $65. This would have meant pensioners could only get a $14 supplementary allowance from B.C.

PAY FULL $24 However, Premier Bennett has ordered welfare officials to continue paying the full $24, making a total maximum pension of $89.

At the same time B.C. has offered an agreement with Ottawa to boost old-age assistance for people between 65 and 70, blind and disabled, by $10.

The increase will be shared 50-50 by Ottawa and B.C. for the blind, and 25-75 for the others.

In other words, B.C. will pay an extra $5 a month to its blind pensioners and an extra $2.50 to disabled and 65-70-year-old pensioners.

Ottawa will pick up the rest of the tab up to $10.

YOUR COMPANY IS REQUESTED

Skipper of the mother ship of a Japanese fishing fleet off Alaska, Capt. Mongo Hanasacki, left, is summoned aboard the U.S. patrol boat Teal by interpreter Sueman Moon of Kodiak. Hanasacki was one of two Japanese captains arrested on poaching charges. Two boats were also seized.

Compromise Offered On A-Test Controls

WATER RIGHTS CAUSE RIOTS

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI)—Bolivia broke diplomatic relations with Chile today over a dispute concerning water rights to the Lauca River.

Wild street rioting broke out at the Chilean Embassy in downtown La Paz. More than 100 carabinieri wielded clubs and threw tear gas grenades to break up repeated charges by Bolivian students seeking to attack the embassy.

GENEVA (UPI)—The eight neutral members of the disarmament conference today formally proposed the establishment of an international control system they believed both Russia and the West could accept to monitor a ban on nuclear testing.

The proposals, introduced on behalf of all eight by Brazilian Sen. Alfonso Arinos de Mello-Franco, followed reports from Washington that the United States has advanced the date on which it will begin atmospheric nuclear tests in the Pacific to about April 25.

The eight unaligned nations, it was learned, proposed the establishment of an international control system to monitor a test ban.

Although details were not immediately available, the plan was said to lie somewhere between the self-inspection proposed by the Russians and the web-like global network demanded by the United States and Britain.

WAIT FOR APPROVAL

The neutrals worked on the plan during the weekend, waiting for approval from each of their capitals.

They had hoped to present the plan last week, but apparently one or more of the nations were slow in approving the new document.

It was submitted when the 21st plenary session opened this morning under the chairmanship of Ethiopia.

The eight neutral members of the conference are Brazil, Burma, Ethiopia, India, Mexico, Nigeria, Sweden and the United Arab Republic.

The test ban deadlock was complete when the neutrals finally made their joint move. Soviet Premier Khrushchev last week refused to accept the principle of international verification of a test ban.

Gunfire Rattles In Oran

(Times News Service) ORAN, Algeria — Security forces and extremist civilians fought a 2½-hour street fight in a European suburb of strike-bound Oran today.

Rifle, machine-gun and tommygun fire was heard and official sources reported one member of French security forces was killed and several were wounded. Witnesses said ambulances transported civilian casualties from the fighting area.

French security forces threw a cordon around the quarter, Gambetta, which is perched on a cliff overlooking the Mediterranean.

French helicopters over Gambetta were fired on before the shooting died down at about noon.

A general strike paralyzed the Algerian port city as the Secret Army again displayed its power here after taking over the centre of the city for 5½ hours Sunday.

'Hot Potato' Today's Crime Special

LONDON (AP)—The potato is the hot item these days for British hijackers and Irish smugglers, due to a shortage in Britain.

Raiders got a good haul during the weekend. At Manchester a truck carrying 2½ tons of potatoes was stolen. Another two tons was hijacked at Liverpool. Somebody got away with 43 sacks of 112 pounds each from a lonely warehouse near Colchester, Essex.

At the Manchester warehouse, manager John Wilson brought in two Alsatian dogs to guard the remaining stocks. Guards were mounted on other warehouses and on produce markets in Britain's major cities.

Tourist Problems Aired

Victoria's tourist problems took a curious twist Friday at a meeting of Chamber of Commerce directors when department store manager Allan Leith posed this paradox:

Why was it, Mr. Leith wanted to know, that the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau was trying to raise $33,000 to entice visitors to Victoria this year while the Island branch of Expo-Lodging was in desperate financial straits because advance bookings showed the influx was going to be far higher than earlier projected?

Surely it was evident, Mr. Leith declared with the backing of several other chamber directors, that some of the promotion funds should immediately be diverted to the accommodation service.

"It seems to me we should be spending the money where it is most needed," he declared.

URGENT NEEDS

Expo-Lodging's regional chairman Ken King, local hotel manager, outlined the urgent financial needs of the organization to the meeting and then was subjected to searching enquiries about the budget.

He explained the initial budget for the Victoria and Island region had been set at $8,000 but the unexpected demand for reservations and information along with telephone and teletype services made it apparent that at least $14,000 and probably more would be needed to operate for the six months of the Seattle World's Fair.

Shipbuilder John Wallace asked Mr. King to be more specific as to the needs of the organization and the amount actually raised so far.

When it became apparent that no specific figures could be given, Mr. Wallace declared that: "If I had known what a poor response there was going to be from the restaurant business and other sections of the tourist industry, I wouldn't have contributed a cent."

E. E. Pearlman, QC, asked: "How do we go to people and ask for money when we don't know how much is needed?"

MUST KNOW PROBLEM

Justin Harbord, also pressing for more information on what the accommodation service needed in the way of funds, added: "We can only solve a problem when we know what the problem is."

Courtney Haddock suggested that a committee be struck to study the question, to work with Expo-Lodging and report back to the board.

The suggestion was accepted and Mr. Wallace was named to head the committee, composed of Mr. Leith, Mr. Haddock, Mr. Harbord, Fred Martin and George Farmer.

The committee met with accommodation representatives Friday afternoon but Mr. Wallace said today little was accomplished and a further meeting will be held Monday afternoon.

MAJOR PROBLEM

Director Sam Lane told the Chamber directors the problem faced by Expo-Lodging of placing visitors in guest houses, private homes, camping areas and trailer parks—when regular hotel and motel accommodation was filled—represented the "greatest public relations problem ever faced by the city in its one hundred years' history."

Mr. King, outlining the operation of the service, said the problem had become so pressing in Seattle that the city of Seattle had taken over financing of the operation while wages of employees were being paid by the state government.

The only help given by the B.C. government was a grant of $2,500 allocated to communications, although, said Mr. King, "we are certainly going back to the government again."

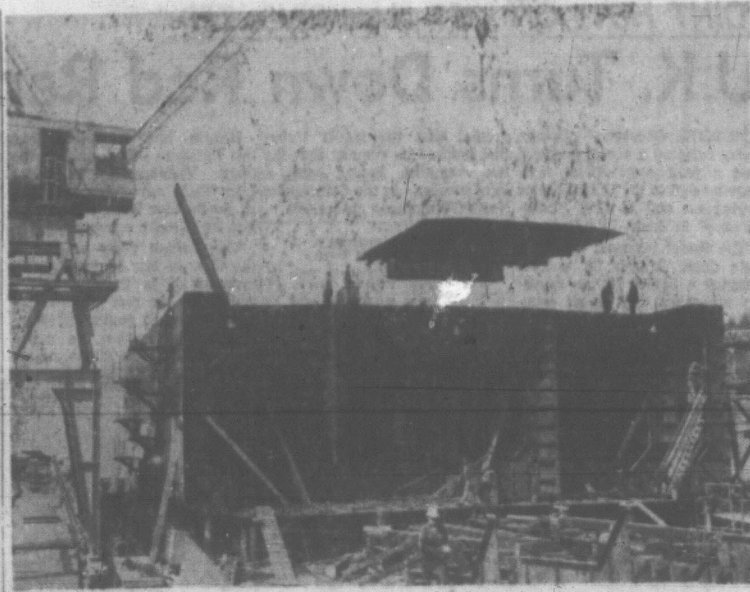

The accommodation industry in B.C. had already spent $26,000 little help from any one side—even though every hotel and motel within the area was already well booked for the Century 21 and Victoria Centennial season.

He added that reports that Victoria accommodation space was already sold out were not true, but no one in the industry was worried about being stuck with vacancies.

Arthur Abrams, an officer of the B.C. Government Travel Bureau, conferred with accommodation industry spokesmen Friday in addition to attending the Chamber of Commerce special committee meeting.

Dr. David B. Turner deputy minister of recreation and conservation, said "we are interested and will do anything we can to help the tourist business."

The B.C. Chamber of Commerce has been requested to ask the government to take over costs of Expo-Lodging as has been done in Washington State.

Atmosphere of Secrecy In Ventures Stock Move

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

In one of the quietest, large-scale stock disposals in some time, Ventures Ltd. has sold off its entire 30 per cent holding—represented by 1,274,832 shares—in Giant Yellowknife Mines Ltd.

First disclosure of the sale was made in a routine announcement from the Securities and Exchange Commission in Washington from a report filed by Ventures.

Ventures has offered no reason for the sale and has not indicated how, when or to whom the shares were sold. At average market values over the past 12 months, the transaction could have brought Ventures some $14 to $15 million in cash.

The wholesale stock dumping has led to considerable speculation about Giant Yellowknife's Yukon property, rated one of the richest grade gold mines in Canada.

With its big block of shares, Ventures was the largest single shareholder and directed operations of Giant Yellowknife.

Du Pont of Canada Ltd. is keeping mum on the possibility of a proposed "heavy water" plant being built anywhere in Canada.

The firm has announced that study of the project is still in "an early stage of evaluation," and it is too early to even set a date for announcing a decision or to talk about locations or other details.

Du Pont, however, emphasized that low-cost energy is vital to the project in order to keep the product competitive.

Clarifying its position with regard to favorable location claims put out by several provinces, among them B.C., Du Pont stated it had received offers of assistance and location from several provinces as well as offers of co-operation from other industries.

It feels, however, that "it is the prerogative of these provinces and industries, both to identify themselves and provide the details of their proposals. The company, therefore, will not comment on either the source or content of proposals it receives."

Eastern firm of Babcock-Wilcox and Goldie-McCulloch of Galt, Ont., has won the contract for two large chemical recovery unit boilers for the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River's expansion projects at Harmac and Port Alberni.

The Harmac unit, one of the largest in the world and biggest ever erected in Canada, will use 2.4 million pounds of mill waste per day as fuel.

The Galt firm will design two units.

Output in U.S. Sets Record

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Industrial production reached a record high last month due to gains in output of consumer goods, business equipment and raw materials, according to the federal reserve board.

The board reported that production of auto assemblies rose slightly and another increase was indicated for this month. Output of iron and steel showed little change in March and declined early this month.

The board's index of industrial activity rose one point to a record high reading of 116 in March.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Steels Lead Wall Street Downward

With steels the major weakening factor, industrials which had started the day slightly above Friday's level began to slip to the minus side this afternoon but recovered enough to be fractionally up at the close.

Removal of a drug from the market because of a question about its side effects plummeted Richardson-Merrell stock on Wall Street six points downward. Others to suffer were Beigian Instruments, off five points and IBM down four.

AT TORONTO weakness gained the upper hand during light mid-afternoon trading.

Steels were the major weakening factor in the main list. Dominion Foundries and Steel fell 1 1/4, Steel Company of Canada 1/2 and Atlas and Algoma 1/4 each.

Imperial Oil, Shawinigan, and BA Oil all dropped 1/4 and Atlas and Algoma 1/4 each.

Imperial Oil, Shawinigan, and BA Oil all dropped 1/4, while Canadian Breweries, Salada Foods, Oshawa Wholesale A and Consolidated Paper all declined in a 1/4 to 1/2 range.

Banks were firmer with Montreal up 1/4, Toronto-Dominion head 1/4 and Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce up 1/4.

Shawinigan fell 1/4 to 22 1/2 in active trading to feature the utilities section.

In mines, Glen Lake Silver fell five cents to $1.53 and Car-bec dropped two cents to 18 per cent.

AT NEW YORK steels widened their losses as they paced a stock market decline in moderate trading.

Losses of the steels stretched to 3 or more points while key stocks throughout the list sank fractions to a point or so.

Xerox fought the downturn with a rise of about 3. Polaroid picked up a point and Du Pont showed a late gain exceeding a point.

AT LONDON the outstanding feature was a fresh advance in gilt-edged securities on buying stimulated by talk of lower interest rates. Dollar stocks were irregular.

Interest in the industrial market was selective but gains predominated.

Gold shares were quiet but mainly steady and oils were quietly firm.

AT VANCOUVER the market was slow during the morning showing little change in prices. Peso traded at $1.40. Prudential Pete went at 20 1/2, and Bethlehem Copper at $2.18. Giant Mascot was up to $1.02, while Kamloops Copper stood at 27. Washington Cop-

HURT BY CANADA

Senators Seeking Aid to U.S. Lumber

WASHINGTON (CP)—The commerce committee of the U.S. Senate is looking for a way to cure the ailing Pacific northwest lumber industry—hard-hit by Canadian competition.

Committee chairman Warren Magnuson (Dem. Wash.) called a hearing today to "pin-point the problem area which has depressed northwest lumber pricing and seen much of our markets taken over by Canadian lumber."

Industry spokesmen say that during the last 10 years Canada's share of the eastern U.S. lumber market has jumped to 57 per cent from seven per cent, causing a decline in the U.S. industry.

U.S. officials hope that the hearing here, and another April 20 at Olympia, Wash., will provide the facts on which measures to counter the downward trend of the northwest U.S. timber industry can be based.

Figures from Washington and Oregon indicate that almost 150,000 persons have full-time jobs in U.S. forest industries with an annual payroll of nearly $790,000,000.

RATES FAVOR CANADA Canadian capture of eastern U.S. markets has been attributed to a variety of causes, but the one most often cited is lower water shipping rates available in Canada.

Canadians may use low-rate foreign ships to carry their timber to market while U.S. lumbermen are required by merchant marine law to use only U.S. flag ships.

It is claimed that this means Canadians can get freight rates $7 to $8 cheaper per thousand board feet than those available to U.S. lumbermen.

Bills have been introduced in congress to solve this problem in two ways.

One proposal is for U.S. carriers to meet foreign rates and be paid a differential to equalize costs. Another plan is to allow the commerce secretary to lift the ban on foreign carriers if he finds a domestic industry seriously hurt by foreign competition.

TODAY'S GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Grain prices moved narrowly in dull trading towards the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

A factor in reducing interest was damage to the Eisenhower lock which will delay shipping of export grain through the St. Lawrence Seaway from the Lakehead.

Overnight export loadings of Canadian wheat were: China 1,000,000 bushels; Philippines 130,000 bushels.

SPRING TIME IS FOAL TIME

Spring is "busting out all over" with the appearance of many long-legged babies of the horse world. Two new arrivals in Saanich are shown here. At left is week-old filly and mother "Buckshee" at Mr. and Mrs. Ron Trickett's McFavish Road farm. The Tricketts, both well-known show riders, have great expectations for the little one. She was sired by their registered quarterhorse stallion, "Red Rock Rex." At right is another week-old baby, considerably smaller. The tiny Shetland colt, born at the Cordova Bay farm of Bill Mattick, is backed by his mother, "Rosita." Father is showy Shetland stallion, "Pegasus," who also makes his home at Mattick's. Youngsters are already growing like weeds.—(Times Photos by Bill Halkett.)

MONTE ROBERTS

Who says there's no percentage in being in the newspaper business?
Hah. You should see a letter in the morning mail. I have been invited to be a judge.
Yup.
In a beauty contest.
Wow!
A BATHING beauty contest.
Wow-Wow-Wow-WOW!
This old dad is getting pretty old, but . . .
Although judging a bathing beauty contest might, at that, be the bliking of the end.
This is a risk I will take, and I have already fired off a telegram of acceptance.
Now, let me have a closer look at the letter which invited me to be a judge for this contest.
This letter is from D. B. Loyd, and the contest is sponsored by the Rotary Club of the Alberni—I presume this club represents Alberni both Port and starboard.
Mr. Loyd asks me to consent to be one of five judges, and to look at the enclosed sheet of photographs of the entries.
Photographs of the entries!
Zingo! Chee! Where's that enclosed sheet? Ah, here it is.
What? What? What? These are lovely photos of lovely people but . . .
Oh, now I know what happened.
I read the letter too quickly the first time.
This isn't a BATHING beauty contest.
It's a BABY beauty contest.
Ah, well, it's more in this old dad's line, and he'll be happy to be a judge.

Women Hurt

A two-car collision Sunday afternoon at Douglas and Belleville sent two women to hospital suffering bruises and shock.
Police said a car driven west on Belleville by Mary Boyle, 1015 Moss, was in collision with one driven south on Douglas by Florence Best, 1793 Haultain.
Mrs. Best and a passenger, Mrs. Florence Ranklow of Everett, Wash., were treated at St. Joseph's Hospital and released.

MANOEUVRING DENIED

Gelling Rebuff Sparks Tory Row

A pre-election row flared within the Progressive Conservative Party today over rejection of former school board chairman W. C. Gelling as a candidate for Victoria's seat in Parliament.
Some local Tories claim the move was to ensure renomination of present MP A. DeB. McPhillips.

Local executive president J. J. Sinnott denied this.
Mr. Gelling's name is not allowed to stand for the Victoria nomination at a convention April 26.
Mr. Sinnott said Mr. Gelling could not run because he had not been a party member long enough.
30 DAYS BEFORE
He joined April 6, and the local constitution, approved two years ago, says a candidate must be a member of the party at least 30 days before the nominating convention.
Mr. Gelling said he couldn't join earlier because his school board membership ruled out political activity.
He said nobody knew what the date was until March 27—less than a month beforehand.
"I find it difficult to reconcile this practice with accepted democratic principles in conducting public affairs," he said.

W. C. GELLING

any Tory meeting before March 27 to announce the convention date and that membership and nominations were closed.
Mr. Sinnott said Mr. Gelling's statement was "quite incorrect."
He said the last Tory meeting was the annual one held at the end of last year.
Mr. Gelling said he would bow to the rules, and would not attend the nominating convention, but that he would welcome the support of any Conservatives who agreed they were unfair.

Garbageman Drives Fire Away

A garbage man's life does have its exciting moments.
Oak Bay truck driver Vic Van-Hoeke played the hero in a spectacular dash from City Hall to the waterfront as he wheeled his flaming garbage van through traffic at 11:30 a.m. today to get away from downtown crowds.
Fire broke out beneath the smoking truck as he pulled up to a stop light at Pandora and Douglas.
City clerk Frank Hunter rushed from his office, whistled and shouted to pedestrians on the corner.
Flames were shooting out from underneath the van, perilously close to the fuel tank.
Van-Hoeke jumped out, had a look and leaped back in, leaning on the horn as he gunned the vehicle toward the garbage wharf.
Wharf tenders doused the fire without difficulty, limiting the damage to a box slung under the chassis where the garbage crew's rainwear was kept.

Tripled Power Needed by U.S.

Mayor, Dowell Favor Study

City council may consider raising this year's business tax by a minute amount if intermunicipal committee maintains the outside municipalities' refusal to give financial assistance to Expo-Lodging here.

The possibility gained ground today following the Centennial-Century 21 reservations centre's desperate plea for $2,500 to keep it going for co-ordinating the accommodation needs of this summer's bumper tourist crop.

Council last week indicated it may foot the bill itself if the intermunicipal committee rejects the request.

DOWELL AGAINST

"I'm against the general taxpayer making up the amount if the other municipalities refuse," said finance committee chairman Ald. Arthur Dowell.

"The people who benefit should be the ones to pay, and I think the hotel and motel group already has contributed its share of the cost."

Both Ald. Dowell and Mayor R. B. Wilson said a study should be made of the business tax before any grant was made from general revenue.

ONE YEAR ONLY

This year's business tax would have to be raised only from 6.25 to 6.3 per cent to cover the grant, it was believed.

It was contended that the slight increase could be justified for this year alone because the extraordinary tourist flow is expected to have an impact on the whole business community and not just the tourist industry.

MIGHTY MARS

'Philippina' Enters Water At Pat Bay

Philippine Mars, one of the three largest flying boats in the world (the other two are her sisters Caroline Mars and Hawaii Mars), took to the water at Patricia Bay today for testing prior to becoming the world's biggest water bomber.

The big aircraft is owned by Forest Industries Flying Tankers Ltd., and in the past few months has been reconditioned and fitted to carry up to 7,000 gallons of water for dumping on forest fires.

Work has been done by Fairley Aviation at its Patricia Bay Airport plant and with FIFT staff assisting.

Water and taxiing tests were set for this afternoon, but it was not known whether flights tests would be made today. It is understood the plane will undergo exhaustive testing here before being moved to its Sprout Lake base later in the week.

Resplendent in new red and white paint job, the massive plane was towed across the airport by truck, then lowered down the marine ramp to the water, where beaching gear was removed.

FIFT, the owner of the aircraft, is the property of four large B.C. logging and timber firms, all of whose lands are within 75 minutes flying time from Sprout Lake.

'Exploit Every Possible Source'

The United States will need more than three times as much electrical power in 1980 as it did in 1961, Commissioner Howard Morgan of the Washington Federal Power Commission said here today.

To meet these "towering demands," the U.S. will have to exploit every possible source of power production, Mr. Morgan told the 22nd annual meeting of the Northwest Public Power Association opening at the Empress Hotel today.

He added that the great expanses of Canada's undeveloped hydro-potential—especially along the upper Columbia, the Fraser and Peace Rivers—must be viewed in the light of the "giant power potential of the Pacific Northwest."

Earlier, Mayor R. B. Wilson told the 300 U.S. delegates: "I suspect you have come up here to find out what is going on in our own field of power development. If you find out, please let us know."

Mr. Morgan estimated that the population of the United States will reach 268,000,000 by 1980—an increase of 84,000,000 over the current figure of 184,000,000.

An Expenditure of $100 Billion

"This means that we will require about 3,000 billion kilowatt-hours of electricity to maintain the dynamism of the U.S. in 1980, compared with the 880 billion kilowatt-hours required in 1961."

"In plant, it means we will need almost 600,000,000 kilowatts of generating capacity in 1980, or a little over three times the nearly 200,000 kilowatt capacity we had in 1961."

"In investment, it means an expenditure of probably upward of $100 billion for generating and transmission facilities alone over the next 20 years."

"To meet these fantastic demands we must exploit to the fullest degree all the recent technological breakthroughs we have been fortunate enough to achieve in recent years."

Giant Pacific Rim Power System

Taking an overall view of the U.S.-Canadian power potential, he suggested the eventual creation of a "giant Pacific rim power system" extending from northern Alaska to southern California. He added:

"I am confident that the benefits of such a system—not confined to one country or to one province or state, but to the entire western segment of this continent—will become increasingly and irresistibly clear."

"In any event, whatever the ultimate form this giant network may take, I am convinced that the need for a truly giant power plan cannot be postponed or ignored any longer."

"With it, I am confident that the continued dynamic growth of our neighboring and inter-dependent countries is assured."

Welcoming delegates and their wives to Victoria, Mayor Wilson noted that the Northwest Public Power Association is holding its first annual meeting outside the United States.

Dan Jolly, president of the association, responded: "If His Worship could stay with us longer, we might have some answers for him concerning B.C. power development."

Ivan L. Bateman, president of the American Public Power Association, Washington, D.C., and chief electrical engineer of the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power, said:

"One of the great opportunities now before the public agencies of the Pacific Coast is the huge inter-tie proposed to inter-connect the power systems of the northwest and the southwest."

"The benefits of this inter-tie to the people of both regions would be enormous. I can assure you that we in California respect your desire in the northwest to protect your low-cost power supplies."

An Oregon Democrat, Mr. Morgan was appointed to the U.S. federal power commission by President Kennedy last March.

DOWN-PLAY CHARGED

City Asked to Save 'Follow the Birds'

A plea was made to city council today to rescue the famous "Follow the Birds to Victoria" slogan from deliberate obcurity.

Y. P. O. Vesey, 1811 Crescent Rd., blamed publicity bureau head William Hawkins for throwing the 40-year-old slogan into the shadows.

Either City Hall should save the old slogan for Victoria or should promote it as a provincial slogan, he contended.

"EQUAL BILLING"

Mr. Vesey charged that Mr. Hawkins was pushing his pet "Canada's Treasure Island" slogan despite assurances he gave last year to an outraged Junior Chamber of Commerce that the two slogans would receive equal billing.

He said that Mr. Hawkins' slogan was given prominent display on the front pages of all tourist literature published by the bureau while "Follow the Birds" was relegated to a small place on back pages and in some cases did not even appear.

City council, if it wanted to keep Island slogan in deference to up-Island communities that now help pay the bureau's expenses, should at least pay the extra cost and have special Victoria pamphlets printed featuring the traditional slogan, he said.

SEAGULL FEATURED

Mr. Vesey pointed out that the B.C. government ferries and Vancouver Island Coach Lines still feature the seagull emblem.

And, as a matter of fact, Mr. Vesey said: "I am informed that if enough interest was shown again in the slogan, the B.C. government might take it up as "Follow the Birds to B.C."

Island Jaycees Condemn B.C. Electric Takeover

Vancouver Island Jaycees have unanimously endorsed a resolution condemning the B.C. government takeover of the B.C. Electric Co.

At an Island district meeting in Powell River Sunday, 140 representatives of seven clubs voted on the censure motion which had been previously passed by the Victoria Junior Chamber.

The resolution termed the expropriation "a dangerous in-

CALLS FOR REVIEW

"It is my understanding that responsible citizens are urged to come forward in political life whenever they feel they are in a position to make an offer of public service."

He called for a review of the rules by a special meeting of the local association.

Mr. Sinnott said Mr. Gelling should have made his request earlier.

"The object of the rules is to keep out people who come in at the last minute and who have never taken any interest in Conservative politics before."

'REASONABLE' TIME

The time limit is "reasonable," he said.

"Our association has got to adhere to the rules. There will be no obstacles placed in the way of any candidate who is qualified."

"I can see no valid objection to the convention setup as it exists. It is very fair and democratic."

"I am sure that the disqualification was to ensure renomination of Mr. McPhillips."

"That is not so. There is no partisanship," he said.

Mr. Gelling complained there had been no advance notice nor fringement of well established rights . . . which deliberately attempts to place (the government's) action above and outside the usual democratic processes of the courts."

New district president, elected at the meeting, is Hoarse Norwath of Duncan. He succeeded Brian Small of Victoria.

Jaycees present represented chambers in Victoria, Duncan, Nanaimo, Courtenay, Port Alberni, Campbell River and Powell River.

'Hot Potato' Today's Crime Special

LONDON (AP)—The potato is the hot item these days for British hijackers and Irish smugglers, due to a shortage in Britain.

Raiders got a good haul during the weekend. At Manchester a truck carrying 2½ tons of potatoes was stolen. Another two tons was hijacked at Liverpool. Somebody got away with 43 sacks of 112 pounds each from a lonely warehouse near Colchester, Essex.

At the Manchester warehouse, manager John Wilson brought in two Alsatian dogs to guard the remaining stocks. Guards were mounted on other warehouses and on produce markets in Britain's major cities.

Ireland restricts the export of potatoes, and smugglers are busy there. They buy from farmers at £20 a ton and truck potatoes over lonely back roads into Northern Ireland, then ship the lot to England. There the spuds fetch £38 a ton on the wholesale market. Potatoes should be scarce in Britain for the next few weeks. There are only 330,000 tons in the country—not enough to meet the full rate of consumption. The crop due from the Channel Islands next month has suffered from frost, gales and salt spray. No new potatoes are expected before June.

Farmers are planning a protest march against the Potato Marketing board in London Tuesday. They and housewives contend the board caused the shortage by restricting the amount grown.

Both Conservative and Labor members of Parliament plan to question the board's activities in the Commons Tuesday.

Japanese 'Poaching,' Claims U.S.

KODIAK, Alaska (AP)—Two Japanese fishing boats have been seized and the captains of three Japanese fishing vessels charged in Alaska Superior Court with poaching in Alaska waters.

The three captains were to be arraigned today.

The move by Alaska state officials climaxes years of dissension over fishing by the Japanese in waters claimed by Alaska.

The seizure of Japanese fishing fleet vessels began Saturday night when Capt. E. L. Mayfield of the Alaska state police boarded the 65-foot herring catcher Ohtori Maru No. 5 at the mouth of Ugank Bay in Shelikof Strait.

The Ohtori Maru's skipper, Higashima Tadae was charged with fishing commercially without a licence and without having registered his gear or boat. The Ohtori Maru was escorted to Kodiak by the Alaska state fish and game department vessel Teal and held in lieu of $25,000 bond.

BOARD SECOND BOAT

A second boat, the Socha Maru No. 7, was boarded in Shelikof Strait Sunday night and escorted to Kodiak by Alaska fish and game department vessel Widgeon.

The Socha Maru's skipper, Abe Tadashi, was charged with violating Alaska's inland waters.

The two seized boats were part of a fleet of five accompanied by a 5,000-ton mother ship, the Banshu Maru which has 123 people aboard. Alaska officials claim the Japanese have been taking herring in Shelikof Strait for about two weeks.

The Banshu Maru's captain, Mongo M. Hanasaki, also was charged with fishing commercially without having notified the state.

NO COMMENT

In Washington officials said today the question of Japanese fishing operations in waters claimed by Alaska is in the process of being resolved. Until the U.S. determines whether the waters are U.S. territory, officials would not comment on the weekend incidents.

In Tokyo, a spokesman for the Taiyo Fisheries Co., which owns the vessels, said, "we have ordered the fleet to operate at least five miles off the coast of the United States, two miles outside the accepted territorial water boundary. We are confident no violation is involved."

Chimney Crushes 11

BOMBAY (Reuters)—Eleven persons were crushed to death and nine others injured today when a concrete chimney crashed through the roof of a house.

WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Dean Rusk met with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin today to push a new U.S. plan for stronger guarantees of Allied access to West Berlin.

Their conference possibly was the first of a new round of U.S.-Soviet discussions on the city. One of the issues to be decided today was whether more talks would follow.

The access plan was described as a key requirement before Rusk unveils to the Russians broader proposals for lowering tension in the Berlin area.

These involve increased participation of communist East Germans in day-to-day operations in the area. But the State Department denounced as "wholly inaccurate" one report that the United States had proposed a 3,500-man reduction in the western garrison in Berlin as part of a settlement plan.

No Formal West German Protest

Although West Germany had not formally disapproved of the new set of U.S. proposals, Chancellor Konrad Adenauer was understood to fear they went too far in some respects.

Adenauer continues to oppose strenuously any offer of a concession to the Russians which in his view would move toward recognition of the Communist East German government.

International Control Asked

GENEVA (UPI)—The eight neutral members of the disarmament conference today formally proposed the establishment of an international control system they believed both Russia and the West could accept to monitor a ban on nuclear testing.

The proposals, introduced on behalf of all eight by Brazilian Sen. Alfonso Arinos de Mello-Franco, followed reports from Washington that the United States has advanced the date on which it will begin atmospheric nuclear tests in the Pacific to about April 25.

The eight unaligned nations, it was learned, proposed the establishment of an international control system to monitor a test ban.

Although details were not immediately available, the plan was said to lie somewhere between the self-inspection proposed by the Russians and the web-like global network demanded by the United States and Britain.

WAIT FOR APPROVAL

The neutrals worked on the plan during the weekend, waiting for approval from each of their capitals.

They had hoped to present it last week, but apparently one or more of the nations were slow in approving the new document.

It was submitted when the 21st plenary session opened this morning under the chairmanship of Ethiopia.

The eight neutral members of the conference are Brazil, Burma, Ethiopia, India, Mexico, Nigeria, Sweden and the United Arab Republic.

The test ban deadlock was complete when the neutrals finally made their joint move. Soviet Premier Khrushchev last week refused to accept the principle of international verification of a test ban.

Church Hits
Segregation
Feud Chiefs

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—

The Roman Catholic archbishop of New Orleans today excommunicated three persons in a segregation feud, including Louisiana political boss Leander H. Perez Sr.

Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel also excommunicated Mrs. B. J. Galliot Jr. and Citizens' Council official Jackson G. Ricau.

Mrs. Galliot, 41, leader of a small segregation group, Save Our Nation, picketed the archbishop's residence the day he ordered parochial schools to be desegregated.

Perez is a long-time political boss of St. Bernard and Orleans parishes. He has been a leading figure in the fight against integration in Louisiana.

Ricau is executive secretary of the pro-segregation Citizens' Council of South Louisiana.

Mrs. Galliot said: "His excellency has no right to make that official without notifying me first. His accusations are false. And the Vatican will have to intervene."

EXILES YEARN
ISLAND HOME

LONDON (UPI)—The homesick refugees of Tristan Da Cunha today brushed aside all fear and stood by their wish to return to their South Atlantic island home.

They took up their position after hearing a report from a British scientific expedition that there was no absolute certainty that the volcanic eruption that drove them from the island last year will not be repeated.

Dr. Ian Gass, who took part in an expedition to the island, said the homes there were still intact, the water was drinkable and the fishing boats left behind were undamaged.

Dief, Here
April 27,
MP Says

(Times Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Victoria MP A. DeB. McPhillips today said he could confirm April 27 as the date on which Prime Minister Diefenbaker will visit Victoria.

At 8 p.m. that day, he stated, Diefenbaker will address a public meeting in the Royal Theatre.

McPhillips said confirmation of the visit clears up earlier speculation that the visit to Ottawa on April 29 of British Prime Minister Macmillan might prevent Diefenbaker from keeping his Victoria date.

There would be no conflict between the two events, McPhillips said.

The MP said Diefenbaker's visit was "geared" to follow by one day the Progressive Conservative nominating convention for Victoria, at which McPhillips hopes to be named again as Tory candidate. (See also page 19.)

Before visiting Victoria, said McPhillips, the Prime Minister is scheduled to attend the semi-annual meeting of the Progressive Conservative Association of B.C. in Vancouver.

Toronto Wants Fair

TORONTO (CP)—Acting Mayor Donald Sumner said today Toronto will make a bid to have the world's fair held here in 1967, Canada's centennial year.

Big Survey Planned

OTTAWA (CP)—A $4,500,000 federal-provincial program to survey 500,000 square miles of territory in the Canadian Shield from the air was announced today by the mines department.

U.K. 'PEACE CORPS'
FOR NEW YORK SLUMS

LONDON (AP)—Sixteen young Britons are going to New York this summer to do "peace corps" work among the tenements of Manhattan's lower East Side.

With American volunteers, they aim to keep children out of trouble during school vacation in an area where teen-age gang war is frequent.

The Britons—known as the Clayton Volunteers—include five girls. They pay as much of their fares as they can. The rest comes from charity funds.
